3 Indicted In Quick Murder Case Enter Pleas Of Not Guilty

Anton Baessler, Michael Connor and Mary Fish Plead Not Guilty—Other Indictments Returned By Grand Jury—Dismissals Recommended.

Two indictments charging murder, first degree, were handed up by the grand jury Wednesday afternoon and one charge of murder, second degree, was reported. All three defendants charged with murder of Uriah Quick, Leibhardt farmer, on January 22, last, entered pleas of not guilty when arraigned by District Attorney Cleon B. Murray. Anton Baessler, 48 years old, a restaurant keeper at Kerhonkson, was the first one arraigned. Mr. Murray read the indictment charging murder, first degree, and Baessler, represented by LeRoy Lounsberry of Ellenville, entered a plea of not guilty.

The indictment charges that Baessler together with one Michael Connor, 66 years old, on January 22, last, at the Quick home at Leibhardt did beat and strike Quick with some instrument unknown and that they then threw Quick down an open cellar-stairs against a stone wall and floor inflicting wounds from which Quick died.

Quick's body was found by neighbors on January 26, four days after Baessler's car was observed at the Quick place, and Baessler and Connor together with Mary Fish, 43, of this city, were arrested a few hours after the body had been found. They were charged with the crime.

Mrs. Fish was the last of the three to be arraigned Wednesday afternoon. She was brought in by deputy sheriffs and arraigned on the charge of murder, second degree, and on her plea of not guilty was immediately taken from the court room. She said she had retained Earl Houghtaling of Walden as her lawyer. Mrs. Fish was formerly a resident of Walden but claims Kingston now as her home.

Michael Connor of Stamford and Kerhonkson is charged with murder, first degree, along with Baessler. Connor had been employed by Baessler but when arrested had been taken back to Stamford by Baessler. Connor is 66 years old. The charge was read to him and he entered a plea of not guilty. He said he had no means of securing counsel and the court will assign counsel this afternoon.

When the body of Quick, an elderly man, was found at the foot of the outside stone cellar steps it was at first thought he had fallen down the steps. However Coroner Humiston, District Attorney Murray and Sergeant Hopkins made an investigation and following that investigation District Attorney Cleon B. Murray issued orders for the arrest of the three people now in custody on a murder charge. There was evidence that Quick had been attacked in his home and beaten there and that he was then taken outside and thrown down the steps in such a manner as to lead a casual investigation to indicate that he had fallen down the steps. However, there was certain evidence discovered in the house to indicate that there had been a struggle and a careful investigation disclosed a part of Quick's eye-glasses in the house while the remainder were found by the body. A search of the house indicated that the premises had been carefully cleaned up after the attack but certain evidence remained overlooked by the person or persons who murdered Quick. Later certain articles and clothes used to clean up bloody evidence at the house were located by the officers some distance from the house where they had been hidden.

Other Indictments Handed Up

The grand jury also returned an indictment against John Brodhead of West Strand, charging rape, second degree, alleged to have been committed October 15, last. He entered a plea of not guilty and counsel will be assigned today. Bail was fixed at $2,500.

Stanley E. Cedula of Troy and Frank Kupic, also of Troy, were indicted on a charge of burglary, third degree, and unlawful entry alleged to have been committed on January 20, last, when the Matarazze gas station at Milton was entered. Cedula was arraigned first and at first stated that he wanted to "get it over with now." District Attorney Murray stated to the court that the record of the defendant was not very good and Cedula stated that he had been convicted before. Judge Russell advised the lad, who is but 19, to enter a plea of not guilty and have counsel assigned and get advice before entering a plea. The court stated that the present charge was a serious one but Cedula said he "wanted to get it over with." However he was convinced that it would be better to get some advice from an attorney before he entered a plea of guilty so a plea of not guilty was entered and counsel will be assigned today.

Kupiec also wanted to plead guilty but took the advice of the court and counsel will be assigned today. In the meantime a plea of not guilty will stand. Kupiec's record, according to Mr. Murray, is such that he advised the defendant to consult with a lawyer before he took a plea. It was not disclosed what his past record had been.

George Bernard Cutler of New Paltz entered a plea of guilty to a charge of burglary, third degree, alleged to have been committed on December 11, last, when the Kutz place at Gardiner was entered. He will be sentenced today at 2 o'clock.

No Bills of Indictment.

No bills of indictment were found in the following cases and the grand jury recommended dismissals. An order was entered discharging defendants now in custody and exonerating bail in cases where bail had been provided:

Neil C. Bancroft, violation of section 1897, possession of a pistol.

Raymond Gerald, rape.

Samuel Appel, grand larceny, second degree.

Arthur Schmidt, extortion.

Harry Pannerollo, sodomy.

Fred Colwell, violation of section 452.

Ellis W. Alexander, violation of section 480.

George Calhound, rape, second degree.

John Doe and Richard Roe.

History Of New Paltz Region Was Paper Read To Rotarians

The Historical Background of the New Paltz Region was the subject of an interesting paper given by Clarence H. Woolsey of New Paltz before the members and guests of the Kingston Rotary Club at the club's mid-week luncheon in the Governor Clinton Hotel yesterday at noon. Members of the New Paltz Exchange Club were present at the meeting as guests of the Kingston Rotarians. They included Jay LeFevre, George Oates, the Rev. Gerrit Wullshleger, Frank LeFevre, and W. J. Cooper. Mr. Oates contributed to the program's success by singing two songs for the enjoyment of those present. Other guests were W. D. Weitz, Poughkeepsie; Willis G. Nash, Conservator of the National Ulster County Bank; Carl Foster of the Y. M. C. A., and V. W. Lyon of Rochester.

Mr. Woolsey spoke as follows:

HISTORY OF NEW PALTZ

INTRODUCTION

This introduction is taken from the "History of New Paltz" by Ralph Le Fevre. The early history of no other portion of our land can excel in interest that of New Paltz. With the exception of Kingston no other place in this part of the country was settled at so early a date. The New Paltz church was organized 40 years before the first church was erected in Poughkeepsie. A grandson of one of the early settlers built Washington's Headquarters at Newburgh. A great grandson of another built the first house in Marlborough. The New Paltz Patentees purchased land from the Indians many years before William Penn did the same thing in Pennsylvania. New Paltz is one of the few settlements in which the stock of the native settlers was not later overwhelmed by a flood of newcomers from other European nationalities. For half a century New Paltz was a little republic by itself in which the Dusine exercised judicial and legislative powers and the church owned no other authority than its own membership. New Paltz is conspicuous in this respect that many homes have been handed down in the same family ever since the first settlement. This is particularly true of such families as the Le Fevres, Deyos, Du Boises and Hasbroucks.

The settlers of New Paltz fled from France to Metz and Manheim in Germany on account of religious troubles. Manheim is in the Palatinate of the Rhine, near Heidelberg and Worms. A French general ravaged the province and the Huguenots were compelled to flee, escaping out of the country and sailing for America from the northern seaports of France. They landed at New Amsterdam as early as 1625 and came up the Hudson River to Wiltwyck as the Indians called it or to Esopus as the Dutch called it. This town was later changed to Kingston when the English took the country from the Dutch.

It might be well to glance for a moment at European history, to see why New Amsterdam changed from

Special Franchise Valuations In City Certified By Clerk

Report of Valuations as Finally Determined by the State Tax Commission—Values of Part of Public Utility Properties.

Albany, March 30—Special franchise valuations for Kingston city, as finally determined by the State Tax Commission were certified today to the city clerk of that municipality. These special franchise valuations are the values of that part of the property of the public utility companies located in the streets, highways and public places. These valuations are comprised of two elements—the value of the tangible property and the value of the intangible right to occupy the streets, highways and public places. These elements combined constitute the special franchise. The figures furnished herewith are the equalized figures. These certified values are subject to tax at the same tax rate in each city in which all other real estate is assessed locally. The 1933 valuations, together with the 1932 figures, for comparative purposes are as follows:

Unemployed Benefit To Be Given April 5

The date of the benefit show for the Workers' Cooperative Association is April 5, instead of the 15th. Ralph Mann, one of the committee in charge said today when he expressed hopes for capacity audiences at the Broadway Theatre, which has been procured for the three performances, one in the afternoon at 4 o'clock and the other two at 7 and 9 in the evening.

"Kingston's Stars in Review" is the title of the benefit show, featuring some of the best talent in this vicinity. Kingston's Harry Lauder will be played by Sam Tinnie instead of James as announced in the program published Wednesday.

R and G Buys Modern Electrical Co. Stock

Bert Bishop and David Harris, until recently conducting one of the leading electrical stores in Kingston under the name of Modern Electrical Company announce that they have sold their stock to Rose and Gorman, Inc., and have merged their organization with the electrical appliance department of the Big Store, where they will continue to serve their many friends they have made during their several years of activity in electrical merchandising. They will be glad to meet their friends and show them the splendidly equipped electrical section at the Rose and Gorman store.

With the addition of the extensive stocks taken over from the Modern Electrical Company and the merging of the two sales organizations there is now concentrated at the Rose and Gorman store the largest and most complete home appliance headquarters in the Hudson Valley.

Besides taking over the exclusive Frigidaire sales, Rose and Gorman have also initiated a refrigeration service department under the supervision of the General Motors Frigidaire Branch authorized to do all Frigidaire service and installation work for the entire Kingston area. Preston Knight and Paul Howand who have been engaged in this work for the last six years, will handle all service. This department is so organized that all Frigidaire users can be assured of day or night service in cases of emergency. The telephone number for night calls will be given every Frigidaire user.

In addition to being the exclusive sales and service headquarters for Frigidaire household and commercial refrigerators, the kitchen appliance department is now showing complete lines of Magic Chef Gas Ranges, Apex Washing Machines, Monarch and Universal Electric Ranges, Majestic and Philco Radios as well as a remarkable and complete assortment of small appliances.

Even during the slow period of the past two weeks, Frigidaire sales have been booming. Twenty-six of these popular electric refrigerators have gone in Kingston and nearby homes during this period, showing that a necessary article always commands a ready sale, especially when available atthe remarkable low price now prevailing.

Mr. Bishop and Mr. Harris have been engaged in the electrical appliance business for the past eight years and during that time have won a large following throughout this territory. The entire organization which they have built up is joining Rose and Gorman with them, and will continue to serve their friends as in the past. Gilbert Sampson, who for the past two years handled floor sales for the Modern Electrical Company, will become one of the outside selling force of the Rose and Gorman appliance department.

MORTGAGE INVESTMENT BILL GOES TO ASSEMBLY

Albany, N. Y., March 30 (AP).—In spite of an attack on the floor of the senate in which they were charged with trying to "welsh" on their contracts, mortgage investment companies in New York will attempt to get action in the assembly on the seven emergency bills designed to loosen mortgage guarantees.

The bills, sponsored by Senator John L. Buckley, New York Democrat, passed the senate by a vote of 39 to 11.

Senators Elmer F. Quinn of New York and Julius Berg of The Bronx led the attack. The former criticizing both the mortgage and title companies and the state insurance department.

Jews Turn To Hitler And Von Hindenburg To Prevent Boycott

Action of Jews in Turning to President Presents Opening Again For a Test of His Powers—Premature Outbreaks Continued in Various Cities.

Berlin, March 30 (AP).—Jews turned today to the very man they hold most responsible for anti-Semitic feeling in Germany, Chancellor Hitler himself, and to President Von Hindenburg, who created the present government, in a last despairing attempt to prevent the nation-wide boycott of Jews due to start Saturday.

Premature outbreaks continued in various cities, resulting in widespread damage to Jewish business establishments. The National Socialist party, which is sponsoring the organized ban on Jewish business and professional activity ordered to begin at 10 A. M. Saturday, disapproved of these acts of vandalism. In some cities, its storm troops were able to suppress outbreaks.

The radical element of the Nazi party was seen as still triumphant as the boycott proclamation was sent to all parts of the country last night. The hopes of the Jews rested in the Conservative branch in which Hitler and Dr. Wilhelm Frick are now identified, as opposed to the other Nazi cabinet members, Capt. Hermann Goering and Joseph Goebbels.

The new appeal, signed by members of the general council of Jews and the board of Berlin's Jewish community, also was addressed to the Nationalist party majority in the Hitler cabinet, which has never been indentified with anti-Semitic activities as advocated by Nazis.

Test Von Hindenburg's Powers.

The action of the Jews in turning to the idolized President von Hindenburg, also, presented an opening again for a test of his powers, which Hitler said have not been "touched" by the new regime. Technically, at least, he still has the power to veto any action of the government. But foes of the Nazis lately have protested there no longer is a chance to gain a hearing from him.

Just a year ago the Jews, who were chiefly identified with the Republican parties, helped to give Hindenburg a 6,000,000 vote majority over Hitler. That the hopes of the republic then were pinned on the imperial military chieftain, was a strange development but he was their choice against Hitler.

That the chief anti-Jewish sentiment in Nazi ranks was directed against the immigrants from the East was seen today in an editorial in the Nazi party newspaper in Munich.

"Jews throughout the world will find out that the times are past when Germany submitted to the besmirching of the * * * Galician immigrants," it said. It described the protests of world Jewish societies against the German developments as "Katzenjammer."

The reference to the Galician Jews recalled the prediction in a German news agency report that eastern Jews who entered Germany since 1914 were to be deported.

(The poverty-stricken population of 800,000 Jews in Galicia were in the theatre of war operations and many reached safety in Germany. Polish nationalists vigorously conducted a vendetta against them during war years and later, when Poland was still at war with Ukrainians and bolsheviks, hundreds of Galician Jews were slain and wounded. Emigrations to Germany continued.)

Einstein to Renounce Citizenship

It was learned here last night that Prof. Albert Einstein, who had decided to remain out of Germany and who now is in Belgium, has taken steps to renounce his Prussian citizenship. Professor Einstein, who was born in Ulm, Germany, was formerly a Swiss citizen, but became a Prussian citizen in 1914 when he accepted a position in the Prussian Academy of Sciences.

Jews and all former Jews in Breslau were ordered today to return all their passports to be marked as invalid for foreign travel.

The object of the order, promulgated by the new police chief of Breslau, former Lieutenant Heines, is, he said, "to prevent them from circulating "atrocity stories abroad."

McGINNIES TO DETERMINE WHAT MEASURES WILL PASS.

Albany, N. Y., March 30 (AP).—The 77 Republicans in the Assembly of the New York legislature today delegated to Speaker Joseph A. McGinnies the power of determining what measures are to be passed and what defeated at this session. The Republicans are in a majority in the Assembly. Democrats hold the majority in the Senate.

This is the first time in many years that the Republicans have given such power to a leader. The session is scheduled to adjourn on April 7.

Rescued Alive.

Mount Carmel, Pa., March 30 (AP).—John Cheslock, Jr., 28, who was rescued alive after being entombed four days in an abandoned mine hole, died today in a hospital at Ashland from the effects of his experience.

Mary Pickford Back.

New York, March 30 (AP)—Mary Pickford, who has been abroad for six weeks, returned today aboard the liner Rex. She is enroute to Hollywood to begin plans for two new pictures.

ORDERS TO BANKS NOT INSTANTANEOUS

Up to noon today the official copy of the Treasury Department order to bank conservators, the gist of which was printed in The Freeman on Tuesday, had not been received. Of course until the official order is received it cannot be acted on by a bank or a conservator. These orders, when made, are given out to the Associated Press and published. Then the order is printed and copies mailed to the banks, becoming effective only when received by the bank officials. Anxious depositors who do not realize that publication of an order in a newspaper does not authorize a bank official to act, but that he must wait until the official printed copy is received, have caused considerable annoyance to themselves and to the banks by rushing in and demanding that an order they have read about be acted on at once. Usually at least 48 hours elapse between the issuing of an order and the receipt in Kingston of the official copy.

Radio Preacher Is Bombed But Escapes Injury Near Detroit

Rev. Father Charles E. Coughlin of the Shrine of the Little Flower Was Object of Bomb Attack During Night—Small Amount of Damage.

Detroit, March 30 (AP).—A small black powder bomb lowered into the basement of the home of the Rev. Father Charles E. Coughlin, in Royal Oak, exploded directly under the priest's bedroom at 3 a. m. today, but caused only a small amount of damage. The explosion damaged five window panes and steam pipes in the basement but no one was injured. A quantity of canned goods also was destroyed.

Father Coughlin, who has become one of the central figures in a heated controversy over Detroit's banking situation, said he was awakened by noise and the sudden shaking of the house. His bedroom was on the first floor of the house in Fairlawn avenue. Asleep on the second floor were Father John Tully, his assistant, and Father William of the Dun Scotus College faculty.

Detectives who reached the scene before Father Coughlin had located the explosion found no trace of a bomb container, but said the smell of black powder was so plain they had no hesitation in attributing the explosion to a black powder bomb.

The apparent attempt upon the life of the pastor of the Shrine of the Little Flower sent police of Royal Oak and Detroit on an immediate search of the village, and a heavy guard was thrown about the house. Persons living in neighboring houses were questioned but none had seen anyone near the Coughlin home, and, so far as the police could determine, none had heard a car leave the street at the time of the explosion.

Outwardly the Coughlin home showed little evidence of the explosion. Detectives reported finding a long white fabric cord hanging from the frame of a window in the southwest corner of the basement. The bomb they said, apparently had been tied to the end of the cord and lowered into the basement.

Father Coughlin who has been delivering weekly addresses on religious, political and economic matters recently has engaged in a sharp controversy with opponents of the government's plan under which a new national bank was established here while two old banks were placed in charge of conservators for liquidation. He has warmly criticised Detroit bankers and opponents of the new bank plan and has himself been criticised in turn.

Green And Gold Ball Easter Monday Night

There will be many attractions at the green and gold charity ball of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Benedictine Hospital on Easter Monday night at the new state armory on Manor avenue. The flower and cigar booth promises to present a charming spectacle. It will be decorated in a manner that will blend with the general color scheme of the large drill shed. Dainty corsages for the ladies and boutonnieres for the men will be sold by the ladies. Cigars and cigarettes will be for sale and all popular brands may be obtained. It is hoped the patrons will wait and buy their supply at the booth.

Mrs. Sam N. Mann is chairman of the booth and her co-chairman is Mrs. Clyke K. Wood. They will be assisted by Mrs. Charles Keefe, Mrs. John Golden, Mrs. Frank Disch, Mrs. James O'Reilly, Mrs. John Weber, Mrs. Sam Levitas, Mrs. C. Ray Everett, Mrs. A. Nollott, Mrs. Margaret Pendill and Mrs. F. E. O'Connor.

Treasury Receipts.

Washington, March 30 (AP)—Treasury receipts for March 28 were $4,157,474.78; expenditures $26,799,052.62; balance $506,727,394.62. Customs duties for 28 days of March were $15,159,275.35.

Democrats Fail To Force Lehman Beer Bill To Floor

Governor's Proposed Control Measure Failed to Gain Floor of Assembly When Motion By Minority Leader I. W. Steingut Was Defeated By Vote of 77 to 70—Solid Republican Opposition Shown to Plan—Measure Killed in Present Form.

State Capitol, Albany, N. Y., March 30 (AP).—The Democrats failed in an effort to force Governor Lehman's beer control bill out on the floor of the New York Assembly today when a motion by minority leader Irwin W. Steingut was defeated by a vote of 77 to 70.

A solid Republican vote was recorded in opposition to the move, which kills the measure in its present form. It can be brought up again, however, provided it is amended.

The vote came after a debate of more than an hour in which the Republican members with the exception of majority leader Russell G. Dunmore and Assemblyman Howard W. Dickey of Buffalo, remained silent.

Dunmore and Dickey spoke against the bill, particularly criticizing the provisions for a central state control board and the strenuous penalties for selling beer without a license.

Governor Lehman's bill, known as the Dunnigan-Steingut bill, provides for a state board of five members with authority to handle all liquor control and licensing.

After Steingut had asked for a closed call of the house and offered his motion to force his bill out of committee, he tried to delay action when it was learned that several Democrats were absent.

The Republicans, however, insisted on immediate debate.

Assemblyman Louis A. Cuvillier, veteran New York wet, criticized the Steingut bill, but said he was going to vote for it. He was particularly opposed to the provision requiring the governor to name the board from a panel submitted by non-political organizations.

"There is no reason why the governor should ask assistance in appointing this board," he said. "It is his duty and power to do it as he sees fit. If you pass this bill you're going to open the door to suggestions from all quasi-corporations in the future."

He also asked for a clear statement in the bill that the sale of beer at bars would be permitted.

"I think that without the bar we will not sell any beer of any consequence," he said.

Seek More Authority In the Investigation Of Private Bankers

Washington, March 30 (AP).—The senate banking committee voted today to ask for additional authority in its investigation of private bankers, because of objections raised to its inquiry by J. P. Morgan & Co.

The committee instructed its counsel, Ferdinand Pecora, to draw up legislation giving it broader power after he reported the Morgan banking house had raised questions about the committee's authority.

Chairman Fletcher said Pecora had asked the bank for certain information.

"They were willing to give access to their records up to a certain point," he said, "but were considering the authority beyond that."

Fletcher said the committee wanted to remove any doubt about its authority, and would ask the senate to amend the resolution under which it is conducting the stock market inquiry.

"We want to make it broad enough to cover every possible objection that may be raised," Fletcher said.

The banking committee decided, Fletcher announced, not to make an investigation of the Harriman National Bank and Trust Company, or delay in the prosecution of its former chairman, Joseph W. Harriman.

It decided, Fletcher said, to leave this entirely up to the treasury and justice departments.

Pecora made a general report to the committee on the progress of his inquiry into private banking houses.

MINISTER ON TRIAL FOR ALLEGED ADVANCES

Munice, Ind., March 30 (AP).—Assertions of an 18-year-old Sunday school teacher that the Rev. G. Lemuel Conway threatened her with violence when she resisted his advances last December, were before the jury today as the suspended minister's trial on a charge of attempting criminal assault continued in circuit court.

Miss Helen Huffman testified late yesterday that after inviting her to ride downtown, Mr. Conway, then pastor of the Madison Street M. E. Church, instead took her in his automobile to a lonely spot near a brook in the country.

When she repulsed his advances, the witness said, the minister threatened to pull her hair and asked her, "how would you like to find yourself with your head in the mud of that creek and your shoes floating down the river?"

Mr. Conway has been suspended from his pastorate by a church jury which found him guilty recently of imprudent ministerial conduct.

On cross-examination, Rollin Lennington, attorney for the minister, wanted to know why she made no outcry to passing automobiles or trucks if she feared mistreatment.

"I didn't think there was any danger with a preacher," Miss Huffman replied.

MEDICINAL LIQUOR BILL GOES TO THE WHITE HOUSE

Washington, March 30 (AP).—The Celler-Copeland medicinal liquor bill removing restrictions on prescriptions by physicians was passed today by the House. It now goes to the White House having passed the Senate yesterday.

The standing House vote on passage was 153 to 59.

FIFTH WARD REPUBLICAN CLUB MEETS TONIGHT

Tonight the Fifth Ward Republican Club meets at its rooms on Delaware avenue and North street for a program of speeches, featuring Conrad J. Heiselman, acting mayor, and entertainment that will include several boxing exhibitions. Starting time is 8 o'clock. A full attendance of members and friends is anticipated.

NEWBURGH HAS HAD 164 CASES OF SCARLET FEVER THIS YEAR.

So far this year Newburgh has had 164 cases of scarlet fever since January 1. Dr. Burke, health officer, states that the cases are of a mild nature. During the past month Newburgh has had 63 new cases of the disease.

Another Earthquake.

Los Angeles, March 30 (AP).—A wide area of southern California, centering in the vicinity of Long Beach and Los Angeles, was rocked by a sharp earthquake at 4:25 o'clock this morning. The convulsion lasted about five seconds. No damage was reported. The tremor was not felt in Santa Barbara nor in San Diego.

BUCKLEY REPEAL BILL IS REPORTED FAVORABLE

Albany, N. Y., March 30 (AP).—The Buckley bill, providing for the setting up of a state convention for the ratification of prohibition repeal, was reported favorable today by the senate committee on judiciary.

The measure provides for a convention of 150 delegates to be elected at large and instructed to vote "for repeal" or "against repeal." The date for the convention is set for June 27.

Dr. Ritchie Opens Office.

Dr. Saul Ritchie, who recently removed from Brooklyn to Kingston, is now located in his new office at 133 Pearl street, where he will practice general medicine in addition to specializing in bone and joint surgery. Dr. Ritchie before coming to Kingston was connected with the Harlem Hospital, the Hospital for Joint Diseases, New York city, and the Brooklyn Jewish Hospital, as assistant attending orthopedic surgeon.

No New Fever Cases At City High School

Dr. L. E. Sanford, Health Officer, Examines Number of Absentees From High School Daily at Health Board Rooms in City Hall—Only Four Cases Reported.

Every morning there has been a number of pupils at the Kingston High School calling at the health board rooms at the city hall where each one has been examined by Dr. L. E. Sanford, health officer, before being allowed to return to school.

This precaution is being taken to prevent a spread of scarlet fever cases in the high school where four cases recently developed, two among out of town pupils and two local cases.

Under the plan adopted by Dr. Sanford every pupil who has been absent from school for any reason is first sent over to the city hall to be examined before being allowed to resume his or her studies.

Daily this week a number of absentee pupils have received this examination.

Dr. Sanford stated today that this precaution would be continued for a while at least. He said that no new cases of scarlet fever had developed among high school students.

FREEMAN WANT ADS BRING RESULTS!

Grand Jury Reports On Voting Machines

Seven open and five sealed indictments were returned Wednesday afternoon by the grand jury which has been in attendance at the March term of supreme court. Ten dismissals were reported, two of them being John Doe dismissals in connection with the voting machine tampering charge which was made last fall following the general election when certain voting machines failed to properly record the vote which was cast for certain candidates.

While no indictments were found in connection with the voting machine tampering charge, the members of the grand jury made certain recommendations in connection with the care and custody of the machines and the future safe-guarding of the machines. One of the recommendations was that "new and capable custodians" be appointed and that the county committee of each party appoint new and capable party representatives.

The resolution of the grand jury which was handed up to the court with the report of the grand jury follows:

Resolutions.

Whereas, at the 1932 general election held in the City of Kingston, in certain election districts, the mechanism of four voting machines was found to be out of order, under circumstances which indicated that they had been tampered with, and, while the facts brought out by our investigation of the said matter indicated that, in our opinion, a certain person or persons had tampered with said machines, said facts did not, in our judgment, constitute sufficient proof to warrant an indictment but did indicate a lack of care and a failure to comply with the law relating to the custody and testing of the machines in question, a condition which is reprehensible and should not be repeated, Now, Therefore Be It Resolved, that we, the Grand Jury in and for the March, 1933 Term of Supreme Court for the County of Ulster, do hereby recommend as follows:

1. That all voting machines be checked, tested and repaired by a mechanic from the Automatic Voting Machine Company, Jamestown, New York, at once and that all repairs thereafter be made by the Automatic Voting Machine Company.

2. That all voting machines be stored in a safe and dry place, under lock and key, between election periods, when not in use.

3. That all two sets each of custodians' and election officers' keys be placed in the custody of the City Clerk, under lock and key. That the City Clerk shall tender such keys as necessary to the custodians, only at such time as they actually require them; that the City Clerk keep a record of the custodian who was tendered the keys and that the City Clerk be responsible that these keys are returned at the proper time; that the custodian receiving such keys sign a receipt for same.

That one set of the custodians' keys and one set of the election officers' keys be duplicates, to be used only in an emergency, and should otherwise never leave the City Clerk's office.

That the other set of custodians' keys be tendered to the custodians only at such time as necessary for them to use same.

That the other set of election officers' keys be tendered only to the police department on election eve, to be delivered to inspectors of election and should be returned to the city clerk's office immediately after election.

4. That custodians using these keys received from the city clerk guard same carefully and never permit them to leave their possession until returned to the city clerk after election; that they shall permit no one to handle these keys except themselves.

5. That proper latches be placed on the upper and lower rear doors of all voting machines to enable these doors to be properly sealed after testing and inspection, the same as the front of the machine.

6. That on or about registration day the Board of Elections notify the city clerk and instruct that all voting machines be delivered to their respective polling places.

7. That the Board of Elections appoint new and capable custodians.

8. That the county committee of each party appoint new and capable party representatives.

9. That about two weeks prior to election, the Board of Elections shall instruct and order the two appointed custodians to test and prepare the voting machines at the polling places, in accordance with instructions on the Custodian's Certificate, Form 511A.

10. That the Board of Elections at this time also notify the chairman of the county committee of both parties to have their party representatives present to witness the testing and preparation of the voting machines at the polling places by the custodians, in accordance with the instructions on the Party Representative Certificate, Form 762.

11. That all four persons, the two custodians and the two party representatives, be present at all times during the testing and preparation of the voting machines. That in the testing, a custodian of one party and a party representative of a different party be at the front of the machine and the other custodian and other party representative check the results of these tests on the counters in the rear.

12. That upon the completion of these tests and preparations, (if machines are found to be in perfect order) each machine, as completed in such tests and preparations, be sealed with three numerical seals, one in the front of the machine that locks the voting lever and two in the rear of the machine on the upper and lower doors respectively that will lock all access to the voting machine mechanism.

13. That immediately upon the completion of the above the Custodian's Certificate, Form 511A, be properly signed in ink by the custodians of both parties and the Party Representative Certificate, Form 762, be properly signed in ink by both party representatives and also by both party custodians.

14. In case of failure of any voting machine to comply with the required tests and preparations, due to mechanical trouble, that same be set aside for the time being and the Automatic Voting Machine Company of Jamestown, New York, notified by the City Clerk to have its official repairman and tester repair and place such machines in proper condition. That upon the completion of such repairs, the custodians and party representatives re-test and re-prepare such machines in the regular manner and follow the same procedure in sealing same in three places and signing the custodian and party representative certificates.

15. That the Board of Elections check these custodian and party representative certificates to see that they are properly filled out and all signatures thereon as required; also that such certificates have been filed at the Board of Elections for all machines in all polling places.

16. That the day prior to election day, the two party representatives and the two custodians make a final inspection at all the polls, to check that the three seals on each machine have not been tampered with and are intact. That a list shall be prepared which shall contain the number and location of each voting machine, the number of all seals on each machine and, if provided with a protective counter, the number registered on such counter. That these lists be signed by both the custodians and the party representatives and turned over to the city clerk.

17. That the city clerk shall prepare from these lists individual envelopes for each machine and place therein the proper election officer's keys for such, seal these envelopes and mark thereon all data as contained in the lists.

18. That the city clerk shall then tender these sealed envelopes properly marked and containing the keys to the police department and secure a receipt for same.

19. That the police department shall see that same are delivered to the proper and authorized inspector of election at each district and secure a receipt upon delivery to such inspectors.

20. On Election Day, before the opening of the polls, inspectors from both parties at each polling place shall examine the envelope containing the keys, see that it is intact and has not been opened, also check the machine numbers and seal numbers on the envelope to see that they correspond with the numbers and seals on the machine, and that the seals of the machine are intact.

21. If the check agrees, the seals on the voting machine shall be broken by the inspectors and the doors concealing the counters shall be opened and the inspectors and authorized watchers shall carefully examine each counter to see that it is set and centered at zero.

22. The inspectors shall then sign a certificate showing the delivery of the keys in a sealed envelope, the number on the seals, the number on the protective counters, if one is provided, that all the counters are set at zero, that the public counter is set at zero and that the ballot labels are properly placed in the machine.

23. That on Election Day at 6 a. m. or one hour before the opening of the polls, both party representatives and both custodians shall be at the Board of Elections.

24. If the inspectors at the polls, upon checking the envelopes containing the keys, find that they do not correspond with numbers and seals on the machines, then these envelopes shall not be opened, or, if upon checking the counters after opening the machine, any counter is found not to be properly centered or registering at zero, or anything else about the machine does not appear to be in proper order, then, in either case, the inspector shall immediately notify the Board of Elections, which will assign one custodian of one party and a party representative of an opposite party to the polls, leaving the other custodian and party representative at the Board of Elections to answer other possible calls from other polling places.

25. In such cases the custodian, if practicable and to the satisfaction of the party representative, shall adjust the counters to zero or make any necessary repairs. If unable to do so, the machine should not be used.

Dated, March 29, 1933.

Foreman.

Clerk.

Luckies Please!

Fujiyama, the eighth wonder of the world

In every corner of the world, both here and overseas, wherever you find joy in life, 'tis always "Luckies Please"

First in character... first in mildness... first in smoking pleasure

Among smart, cosmopolitan folk, you'll hear of Luckies in many languages—but the meaning is always the same—"Luckies Please!" . . . For people the world over want a cigarette with Character . . . and Mildness. Lucky Strike's rich, delightful Character comes from that mellow, balanced blend of fine tobaccos.

And—these splendid tobaccos are truly mild! Because every fragrant shred is "Toasted". For these two reasons — Character and Mildness—"Luckies Please!"

because "It's toasted"

Nation-wide Banquet Held at the Y. W. C. A.

The Business Girls' Club of the Y. W. C. A. held its nation-wide banquet at the Y. W. C. A. on Wednesday evening. It was both a [illegible] affair and one of special import in the work and spirit of the Young Women's Christian Association.

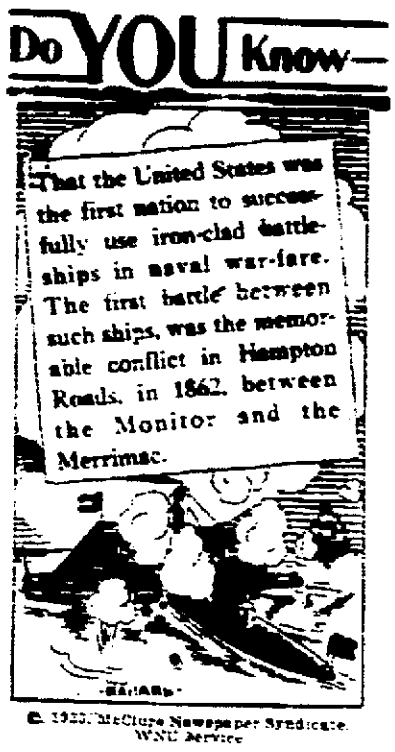
The hall was decorated artistically with large flags of many nations covering the windows and walls. Some 15 small tables, seating four girls at a table, were very cleverly decorated according to nations. The decorations covered the following nations: England, France, Italy, Hawaii, Germany, Scotland, Switzerland, Turkey, America, Japan, China, Holland, Ireland and Mexico, with two tables just decorated prettily. Not a little study and much originality was displayed in these table decorations. In addition to its being nation-wide night, it was guest night and there were 61 who sat down for the excellent supper. It was also a happy thought to have the number in attendance the same as the number of nations including America which support Young Women's Christian Associations.

After some hearty singing, Miss Beatrice Powley read greetings from Mrs. Beatrice Chamberlin, president of the National Y. W. C. A. after which there were a few moments of silent friendship prayer, and from Gladys M. Doherty, president of the National Business and Professional Council and from Mrs. F. M. Paist, president of the National Board all addressed to the business girls of the Y. W. C. A. and stressing the world fellowship of young womanhood.

The speaker of the evening was Miss Florence Christopher of the National Business and Professional Council, who came from the Schenectady Y. W. C. A. and was introduced affectionately by Miss Elsie Phillips, president of the Kingston Business Girls Club, who also extended greetings and a cordial welcome to the girls present and especially to the guests whom she hoped would come again and often until they joined the Y. W. C. A. themselves.

Miss Christopher was a clear-thinking girl of fine spirit who spoke convincingly of the plan of forming assemblies of the Council of Business and Professional Women of which she was a part. While this new group was an infant in the national Y. W. C. A. like most infants, Miss Christopher was sure it would get what it needed and wanted. She told at some length of the work of her department and closed by drawing the attention of the girls to the need of an adequate philosophy of life for our business girls today, a philosophy founded upon the Christian religion which will widen our interests to cover those of girls the world over and so make us forget just our little selves. It is time to develop that love for others that is opposed to selfishness and looks outward.

At next Wednesday's meeting reports will be given of the conference which is being held at Albany over this week-end and which will be attended by a delegation of the Business Girls' Club of Kingston.



That the United States was the first nation to successfully use iron-clad battle-ships in naval war-fare. The first battle between such ships, was the memorable conflict in Hampton Roads, in 1862, between the Monitor and the Merrimac.

Ideal Pulse for Air Pilot

The ideal pulse for an air pilot should beat about 60 times a minute, but women rarely have so low a pulse, declares a European scientist.

Pure English Is Demanded of All Players in Movies

No matter how charming they may sound, southern accents—and in fact, accents of any kind—are listened to with a jaundiced ear at the movie studios according to a director of a voice and dramatic school.

Many are affected by the ban on accents for all must attempt to having the "r's," "g's" and other inflections of "pure English" reinserted into their vocabularies.

In explaining the decree, the director said:

"Unless players can enunciate pure English they are limited as to the parts they can play, their work and that of the studio which employs them being hindered thereby.

"Southerners—and for that matter, Yankees and westerners—must have all traces of provincialism removed from their speech before they can become truly valuable players.

"Personally I like the southern accent, but my duty is to see that players under contract can enact any type of role on a moment's notice."

London's "Big Ben" Clock Is Not Largest in World

"Big Ben" is the great bell of the clock tower on the Parliament house in London. It was named after Sir Benjamin Hall, who was First Commissioner of Works at the time of its erection. The bell was cast at the Whitechapel Bell foundry in 1858, and weighs 13½ tons. The pendulum weighs 700 pounds.

The clock has four dials, each 22½ feet in diameter. The figures are two feet high and the minute hand fourteen feet long.

This clock, however, is not the largest in the world. The largest is said to be one located on the Colgate building in Jersey City, N. J., at the point where the Hudson river empties into New York bay. The minute hand of this clock is 38 feet long and its hour hand 27 feet. The dial is 50 feet wide. A quarter-horse power motor is required to wind the giant clock.

World's Fairs

Only two other actual world's fairs were held in the United States prior to the Louisiana Purchase exposition in 1904. One was the Columbus celebration in Chicago, in 1893, and the Centennial, in Philadelphia, in 1876. Besides these this country has had a number of smaller, special expositions such as the Trans-Mississippi, at Omaha in 1898, the Pan-American in Buffalo in 1901, the Jamestown, 1907; Seattle, 1909; San Diego, 1912; and San Francisco, in 1915. World's fairs were held every 10 years in Paris in the latter part of the last century.

Doubtless many who look at mapped globes are puzzled at the diagram resembling the figure "8" extending from the Tropic of Cancer down to the Tropic of Capricorn. This figure is known as the "analemma" and is used to determine the place where the sun's rays fall vertically on the earth any time of the year. As the sun never is overhead except in the tropics, the analemma extends only within that belt. The diagram also is used to find the difference between the sun or solar time and local or clock time, termed the "equation of time."

Islandmagee

Islandmagee is a peninsula rather than an island, not far from Larne in Ulster, Ireland, and was anciently the home of the Magees, and on it are curious stone remains of prehistoric times. The Gobbins are both cliffs off the eastern shore, which in recent years have been opened to the public, as before they could only be seen from the sea. Their vast precipices hold the secret of many a legend, and men have been hurled from the top of them. They are penetrated by many caves and rocks that provide homes for large flocks of seabirds.

Depth of Great Lakes

Lake Superior is the deepest of the lakes, most of it being more than 900 feet, while Lake Erie's maximum depth is 210 feet. The greatest depth of Lake Superior is 1,290 feet, about twenty miles off Otter Head, Ontario. Lake Erie's maximum depth is found in a five-mile area, near Long Point, Ontario. Its average depth is about 60 feet. The deepest soundings in feet of the other Great Lakes are: Michigan, 932; Huron, 750; Ontario, 738.

Revere Church Bell for $1,300

A rare church bell cast by Paul Revere brought $1,300 at an auction in Boston, where a number of other early American relics were sold. The church bell is 37 inches high and 45 inches in diameter and was removed from a church in West Newbury, Mass., after the church had been destroyed by fire about 25 years ago. Cast in relief around the upper part of the bell are the words "Revere Boston 1823."

Problem of Circumference

If a steel tape were drawn around the earth at the equator and made a tight fit, then it was cut and 25 feet of tape added to it, it would be theoretically possible to stretch it so that it would be four feet away from the earth all the way around. This is equivalent to saying that an increase of circumference of the earth by 25 feet means an increase of the radius about four feet.

Some Memory!

Ampere, the great French mathematician and physicist, had a memory so prodigious that as a boy he learned an encyclopedia by heart and fifty years later could repeat long passages from it accurately.

HIGHLAND

Highland, March 30—Miss Edith Dickinson spent past week in New York city the guest of her sister and husband.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Lent were in New York city recently and while there visited Radio City.

Mrs. J. J. Ennist has returned home after spending a week in Brooklyn with her daughter, who is a student at Pratt Institute.

Mr. and Mrs. Luther Filkins had as their recent guest, T. Pressler, of Marlborough.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Campbell had as their recent guests, Dr. and Mrs. M. C. Phillips, of Red Hook.

Mrs. Edward Van Demark is visiting in Marlborough with her daughter, Mrs. DuBois.

John Perkins, who has been ill for a long time at his home on Tillson avenue, has improved greatly, which is good news to relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Edison Dimsey, Sr. had as their guest Miss Ella Dimsey, Mr. Dimsey's sister, of Newark, N. J.

A new garage will be opened here April 1 by a Mr. Hasbrouck of Ellenville.

The Music Study Club held its meeting Tuesday in New Paltz at the home of a member, Mrs. Arthur Kurtz. Mrs. J. Lucas had charge of the program.

Mr. and Mrs. Kirk Paterson will live in Poughkeepsie for a short time with Mr. Paterson, Sr., and family.

Miss Daisy Bennett and Floyd Mackey were Sunday guests of friends in Peekskill.

Mrs. A. L. Lane of Milton road was a guest the past week of Mrs. J. D. Palmatier in Lloyd.

Harry Contant, Jr., who is a pupil in Oakwood School, is home now on a 12 days' vacation.

The Lions Club met Monday evening at the "Elms". They cleared a nice sum at the St. Patrick's dance held in Lloyd Grange Hall.

Monday evening the F. & A. M. held its regular meeting in Masonic Hall. There was a large attendance. Joseph Mellor, W. Master, presided.

Sidney Mackey of Bogota, N. J., was a guest last Sunday of his mother, Mrs. Harriet Mackey, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hallock Mackey on Milton road.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Palmer of Grand street motored Saturday to Rockville Center. They were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Palmer. Mrs. Frank Palmer of this place has been guest of the Alfred Palmer family for a few weeks. She returned home with her son, Louis, Sunday evening.

Monday, April 3, the Reading Circle of the Presbyterian Church will hold its meeting at the home of Mrs. Irving Mears.

Wednesday, April 5, Ida McKinley Council, D. of A., will meet in the K. of P. Hall. These meetings are largely attended. Daisy Bennett is councilor. At every meeting, when work is completed, cards, dominoes and jig saw puzzles seem to take up the time. The work is being carried forward with interest.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Pratt are at present entertaining relatives from Vancouver, Washington.

Mrs. J. J. Ennist was a recent guest at a luncheon and card party in Poughkeepsie.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Weezenaar, Jr., and Mrs. Charles DuBois of Maple avenue attended the flower show in New York city the past week.

Methodist people held fourth quarterly conference last Friday evening in the church. The Rev. P. C. Werant, district superintendent, and wife were honored guests. They conducted a get-together social and held a grand covered dish supper at 6:30. This was under the auspices of Auxiliary Club, of which Mrs. Suzanne E. Decker is president. They fed about 140 and everyone pronounced it a wonderful success. Mr. and Mrs. Lorin Osterhoudt celebrated their 25 years of wedded life and Mrs. Decker presented them with a bride's cake with 25 lighted candles on. She introduced some sport in her remarks as usual. Late in the evening the officials assembled in the auditorium and received the year's reports from heads of all departments. A call was extended for the Rev. H. Killinder to return for another year. Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Feeter of Kingston were present and Mr. Feeter gave very interesting remarks in regard to the church and its pastor and work which were appreciated and enjoyed. All hope by these meetings to renew the ties of friendship that only strengthen through passing years.

Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Sutton of Tillson avenue are the parents of a daughter. Both mother and child are doing nicely.

A few from here were in Milton Presbyterian Church Tuesday for a missionary meeting. A Chinese Luncheon was served. Mrs. A. W. Lent was the speaker of the afternoon.

The J. O. U. A. M. from Rifton were guests of Brainard Howell Council of this place Tuesday evening. At the close of work they had a baseball contest and the Rifton people won.

Mrs. J. J. Donovan and Mrs. Emma Davis motored Wednesday afternoon to Albany and brought LeVerne Davis from Albany Hospital where he had an operation upon his leg. He is getting on finely and delighted to get home. His many friends are glad of the successful operation and are pleased to have him home again.

Mrs. Myron Kniffen of Milton Road was in town Wednesday doing some shopping.

The Rev. and Mrs. Herbert Killinder left Thursday for New York city where they will attend conference. Mr. Killinder will return to Highland.

DECENCY TO IMMIGRANTS.

A more kindly policy toward immigrants seeking citizenship was urged the other day in Cleveland by representatives of 20 civic organizations meeting with the Americanization committee of the local bar association. They are particularly interested in making naturalization financially easier at this time. They ask Congress to reduce the charges for naturalization papers from $20 to $10. A resolution adopted by them says: "The present charges fixed by the government for the naturalization of aliens constitute a handicap to thousands of these residents who are loyal to the American government and desire to become citizens of the United States."

At the same time there are signs of gentler treatment of the few immigrants still arriving in this country under the present quota plan. In the enforcement of the immigration laws there has often seemed to be a severity which Congress could have hardly intended, and which lacks the support of the American public. Our people obviously want to keep a strict limit on the number of immigrants. But there is little evidence of any popular desire to bar even those eligible to admission under the law, or to sanction red tape and harsh treatment in administration of the law. It is gratifying to see that Miss Frances Perkins, head of the Labor Department, shows a disposition to humanize the immigration service.

DEMOUNTABLE BEAUTY.

A visitor to the exhibition of the International Beauty Shop owners might have forgotten temporarily the state of the nation or the state of his own finances. The effect of this release, however, would hardly have been as uplifting and refreshing as that of a good concert or play or even a brisk walk. Among the articles on display were "demountable lips, demountable eyelashes, demountable noses, demountable fingernails, ear tacks, artificial eye sparkle and tiny pictures and letters for fingernail decoration."

The lips are made of a flexible composition, 1-100,000th of an inch thick, which can be applied over the real lips. It is claimed they will "stand up under 'the most severe treatment' and will last about 24 hours." The ear tacks are flesh colored contrivances of court plaster designed to hold prominent ears neatly against the head. The gold-plated nose-shapers (selling for $35) are frames which may be slipped inside the nose to give it whatever shape its owner desires. In other words, straight noses may be given "that saucy look" of the naturally up-tilted nose.

The subject really is too harrowing to pursue farther. Since the articles were there on display, it must be true that there are women who want these accessories of make-up. It seems strange that they are not displayed in sideshows along with South American savages who wear rings in their noses and extend their lips to abnormal dimensions by inserting metal discs.

QUIETER AUTO HORNS.

In 1930, according to noise-abatement statistics, 97 per cent of the automobile horns of the nation were raucous and terrifying. A year later the percentage had been reduced to 93, through cooperation of manufacturers with groups seeking to reduce the amount of unnecessary street noises. Probably there are still fewer "raucous and terrifying" horns today. This is gratifying progress. It is necessary to have some means of warning pedestrians and other drivers of a car's approach, but it is not necessary to have the warning so loud and harsh that it inspires panic instead of caution.

Improving the tone of motor horns—and why not street car gongs, too?—is only part of the job. Something must be done about the human nuisance who scorns to make proper use of his horn and goes rushing along a street or highway blaring it loudly at every intersection, driveway or motorist he approaches. Something must be done, too, about the pest who substitutes his horn for a doorbell, sitting behind the wheel and honking for attention. Let us have quieter horns and less nervous use of them.

ESPIONAGE IN GERMANY

One of the most disquieting things heard about Germany in the last few days is this confidential cable sent to America from Holland: "Letters from America to Germany should omit any political remarks whatsoever. Recipients subject to gravest embarrassment, irreparable consequences."

This presumably authentic warning should be carefully heeded. No matter what Americans may think of conditions in Germany, it is best not to express criticism in letters to friends or relatives living in that country, lest they be subjected to suspicion and danger. It is probably well not even to write letters to Germany asking for information.

The sidelight given on the political situation there will not be lost on the reader. If there is such espionage and persecution as are hinted in the message, and supported by news from many sources, Germany has sunk far, indeed, from the freedom and enlightenment it enjoyed under the republican rule of Hindenburg and Stresemann.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

TEN POINTS ABOUT ECZEMA.

You have likely heard of the advice the old doctor gave his son, "Be a skin specialist, my boy; your patients never die and they never get well."

When you remember that more than half of all the skin diseases are made up of eczema in some form, you can understand the old doctor's advice because eczema usually persists for a long time, improves at times, and then becomes worse again.

As you know eczema is not considered a skin disease any more, but just a symptom or symptoms of a number of "wrong" conditions of the body.

Dr. John H. Stokes, Philadelphia, presents a complete list of the ten main factors that make up the cause or causes of eczema. These are:

1. The family or inherited tendency toward eczema.
2. The dry skin factor.
3. The oily skin factor.
4. The pus formation factor; due to little pus forming organisms.
5. The fungus infection factor; due to yeast-like organisms.
6. The factor of having infection elsewhere in the body causing eczema, as from teeth, tonsils, and particularly the large intestine.
7. What is called the metabolic factor; that is the rate at which the body processes work. In eczema the processes work too slowly in digesting and absorbing certain foods such as potatoes, bread, sugar, and other starches.
8. The sensitive factor; this is where the body is sensitive to certain foods or irritants.
9. The nervous factor. Excitement, worry and so forth upset the workings of the body processes.
10. Diathesis. This is the tendency of the body in some people to be more liable or likely to develop certain ailments; in this case what is called the eczema—asthma—hay fever complex.

You can readily see from studying these ten conditions that form the background for eczema, that when a doctor undertakes the cure of eczema, he has a real job on his hands. Yet, by just thinking of these, or of one single point—the nervousness, the over use of starch, the sensitiveness to certain foods or any one of the ten,—he may obtain a cure in a very short time.

Chapter 45

ANOTHER PLOT

"Coffee, Hassan, quickly," said Jules, and slyly made a secret sign.

Swiftly Hassan departed, and, a few moments later, was seated in his nearby stone cell, before a small brazier wherein a fire perpetually smoldered, and water was ready for the making of coffee or mint-tea at any time.

Having set the coffee to boil, Hassan el Miskeen now departed from his accustomed unchanging ritual.

Pulling a stone from the wall, he put his hand into the aperture thus disclosed, and brought forth a tiny amulet-box.

From this he shook a quantity of dirty white powder into the coffee-pot.

And smacking his lips, Hassan el Miskeen stirred the brew once more, and then hurried with laden tray to his master's room. When Hassan el Miskeen entered, he found his master seated cross-legged upon a divan, a bottle of brandy and a glass upon a low table by his side.

Seated opposite to him, lolling in comfort, smoking a cigarette, Raisul smiled enigmatically.

"Put the coffee beside the Sidi," ordered Jules.

And having obeyed, Hassan el Miskeen departed from the room, and sat himself down within sight of the door, to watch and to wait.

Would that human devil actually die there in the room? Might Hassan be called, to go quickly for help, and looking into the room, might he actually see him contorted and writhing in the throes of death; with his own eyes see him dying there in dreadful agony, even as he had caused so many others to die in agony?

Smiling, almost chuckling, at his thoughts, Raisul poured himself a cup of coffee.

"Aren't you going to have a little drink, Jules?" he asked, nodding towards the brandy bottle.

"Rather. I was only waiting until you . . ."

"Oh, don't wait for me, my dear chap," and Raisul stirred his coffee.

Jules poured himself a generous measure of brandy.

"Allah," he said, "that tastes—funny," and smacked his lips and clicked his tongue doubtfully.

"Brandy wrong, or your liver?" smiled Raisul, still stirring the untasted coffee.

"My liver's all ri," observed Jules, who suddenly seemed a little drunk.

"So's the brandy," replied Raisul. "Try it again."

Jules Maligni tried it again.

"'Snasty," he said. "Bin in boll too long . . ."

Raisul laughed.

"Look here, aren't you going to drink your—hic—coffee?"

Raisul again laughed merrily.

"No, I don't think I'll drink any coffee tonight, Jules, you half-baked Borgia."

"Whassyou say?"

"I said, 'Come along to my room now.' I'm going to show you something. Something really good. I'll give you my word. Come on with you."

"Rope!" observed Raisul to Jules Maligni as they sat in the former's room a few minutes later.

"Bear your weight, wouldn't it, Jules, if it were round your neck."

"I should shay sho," laughed the other, less vacantly.

"Yes, a very nice rope," continued Raisul, "and it gives me a very nice idea. Strong enough and, I think long enough."

"For what?" asked Jules Maligni.

"I'll show you, as I promised. Great idea. Come along," and going to the door, Raisul bade Jules Maligni bring the rope.

"I say, you know, old chapple, you don't think you're going to—hic—hang me, do you?"

"No, I am not going to—hic—hang you. Come along, will you?"

And followed obediently by his companion with the rope, and soon by Hassan el Miskeen, Raisul proceeded, by devious ways, to a distant part of the Citadel.

"This is the place," said Raisul at length. "At least, I think it is. I want you to lean through that embrasure and hang over, and tell me what you can see straight below. Be very careful, and don't lean out too far."

Jules Maligni obeyed his cousin, as always.

"Nothing there. Can't see any—hic—thing. Only rocks."

"Ah!" observed Raisul. "All clear, eh? Right. Now stand up like a man, straight and steady, and look at the horizon. What can you see?"

"Nothing. Can't see any—hic—thing."

"Well, you will in a moment," replied Raisul and, standing behind Maligni, he swiftly bent over backward and raised his foot as does the savate fighter, with back-drawn knee.

Suddenly, with tremendous force and swiftness, the foot shot out, the sole taking Maligni squarely between the shoulder-blades, and hurling him forward.

Out over the desert.

His legs struck the edge of the low embrasure, and with a gasping cry he threw out his arms and clutched wildly at the embrasure sides, as, head foremost, he fell—and disappeared over the castle wall . . .

Down . . . down . . . down . . . turning and turning in mid-air, to strike the jackal-haunted rocks in the deep ravine, three hundred feet below.

Raisul turned away.

"And now for the little rope-trick," quoth he, and smiled his own especial smile.

* * * *

What was to be the end of it all—the end of her—Margaret wondered as she again assured herself that the huge key of her door was turned as far as it would go, and that both the great heavy bolts were shot home.

Having undressed, she went to the little stone verandah-balcony built out from the wall of the room, that vast wall, ten feet thick even at this great height, which was part of the outer wall of the castle itself.

Yawning heavily, for sleep of late had been light, scanty and broken, Margaret flung herself down upon the over-cushioned bed, and once again tried all the sleep-wooing devices of which she had ever heard.

But what folly to think that she could sleep while Otho was lying bound and gagged, perhaps maimed for life.

What was that? A cry?

The Test of Praise.

We are tested as much by what we praise as anything else. For praise is the revelation of what we long for, delight in and really adore. People who never praise anything are dull, people who never praise anybody are either envious or bitter in spirit. People who praise wrong things are morally wrong. People who praise the noble, the good, the beautiful or the enduring prove themselves akin to what they glorify. Praise is a natural impulse of the understanding nature and to refuse it is to deny our own birthright. Since praise is always generous, it enlarges the spirit and if it be addressed to what is higher than ourselves, it lifts us up. The exercise of it frees our spirits and the nobility of its forms and words gives nobility to our souls.

Prayer: Help up, O Lord Who are greatly to be praised, so to discern Thy goodness and be moved by gratitude for all Thy mercies that our lips shall speak Thy praise. Enlarge us in adoration and, as we praise Thee, lift us above ourselves into the fellowship of the fellowship of earth and sky who sing unceasingly: "Holy, Holy, Holy, Lord God Almighty." In His name Whose praise we unite to Thine. Amen.

Impressed into what is now solid rock, dinosaur tracks may be seen in and near Moenkopi, a Hopi town in northern Arizona—tracks that were made 30,000,000 years ago.

The footprints were made when the rock was soft mud, according to geologists. Many of the tracks were undisturbed when the mud solidified and were thus turned into solid stone. The tracks have weathered millions of years of wind and rain, but are still plainly visible on the desert rock.

If you attended a banquet three or four times a week for a year or so, you would probably be tired of banquets, but if you attended one every night in the week for 20 years without missing one, you would still be 500 banquets behind Chauncey Depew, America's famous after-dinner speaker.

Mr. Depew, who once said that he attended banquets because he liked them, and that he made after-dinner speeches as a recreation, is estimated to have attended 8,000 banquets in his time. He gave so many talks that he lost track of them and, strange as it seems, he was not a professional speaker.

Licenses Revoked And Suspended

Five hundred and seventy-four certificates of registration and licenses to drive were revoked or suspended by the commissioner of motor vehicles during the two weeks ended March 18. Of these cases 213 will require proof of financial responsibility before applications for new licenses will be considered. There were 37 revocations and 275 suspensions in New York city and vicinity, and 74 revocations and 185 suspensions in other parts of the state.

In the Albany district there were 20 revocations and 55 suspensions. Twenty-five of the suspensions were failure to file omnibus bonds, the names of those involved not being published.

In this vicinity there was one revocation, that of Ralph E. Felver of Kerhonkson for driving while intoxicated, and one suspension, Nestan Gromoll, R. F. D. 1, Kingston, for evading prosecution.

James Scott, local artist of Indian Road, Milton, is representing the membership committee in this section. The association is now planning for its initial exhibition to be held in the central location to be announced later.

The Milton Study Club will meet Thursday afternoon, April 6, at the home of Mrs. Edgar Clarke. This will be the last meeting of the season.

Mr. Croonquist, assistant general freight agent for the New York Central railroad, addressed the members of the Lions Club of the town of Marlborough at its meeting held here Tuesday evening. The speaker told the club members of the new truck regulations legislation. He explained what it was for and how it had originated. During the business meeting of the club a report of the benefit basketball games held recently was given. A total of $73.75 was reported which will be given to the Marlborough Library. The next meeting will be held Tuesday evening, April 3, at Shady Brook Farm.

A joint meeting of the Lattintown Mothers' Club and the Milton Study Club is being planned for Friday afternoon, April 21. The meeting will be held in the Lattintown school house.

Robert Wilke, a student at Oakwood School in Poughkeepsie, has returned to his home to spend the spring vacation.

A number of Milton people attended the Baird organ recital in Poughkeepsie Thursday evening.

Miss Minna Strohman, town nurse, attended the Ulster County Girl Scouts meeting at the Scout headquarters in Kingston recently. During the first part of last month she attended the mental hygiene clinic at the Rockland State Hospital in Orangeburg.

Mrs. Edward Kaley will take part in the Indian cantata in the Highland Music Study Club for the spring festival in June.

Mrs. Charles Hulshart and daughter, Jeanne Frances, of Westfield, N. J., is visiting with her sister, Mrs. Edgar Clarke.

A. J. Schaffer of Plattekill will address members of the Community Garden Club at its next meeting to be held at the home of Mrs. LeGrand Pellett at 60 Leroy Place, Newburgh, Wednesday afternoon, April 5. Mr. Schaffer will give a talk on the subject of new plants.

Among those from Milton who attended the flower show in New York city last week were Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Clarke, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Clarke, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Taber, Miss Edna Toosie, Kenneth Taber, Miss Loretta Spratt and Miss Lulu E. Clarke.

James Hirschfeld has returned to his home in Germany, after having spent the past month with his aunt, Mrs. Edith Fowler.

Mrs. A. J. Booth and Miss Loretta Spratt were recent guests of Miss Helen Hamm in Jersey City.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Martin will soon move from the house they are now living in here to the J. J. Lucas bungalow on Maple avenue, Highland. They will build their own home in the near future.

Miss Ellen McManus of New York city was a week-end visitor at the home of her parents here.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Paul Viscounti on Sunday evening, March 19. Mrs. Fred Viscounti, Jr., is caring for Mrs. Viscounti and little son.

Eclipse of Sun in 1945

An eclipse of the sun July 9, 1945, will be visible as partial throughout the United States except in Idaho, Montana, North Dakota and in Canada, where it will be total.

IT is human nature to give least thought to the things with which we are most familiar. Consequently people don't think about the sugar they use.

But, sugar is the one essential food to which you should give most serious attention.

Sugar is made from a variety of things.

It is made in many countries—made under widely different sanitary conditions.

What do you know about the Sugar You Use?

There is a way in which you can be certain that the sugar you and your family use is pure, clean, wholesome sugar.

FEEDS GRASS

makes it grow twice as fast . . . AND THICKER!

It's positively remarkable the way Lōma makes grass grow. You can actually see the difference in your lawn ten days after you use it. Lōma feeds the tiny roots. Stimulates them. So they send up strong, sturdy blades of grass. Lōma is richer in nitrogen—the most vital food element. Yet it costs no more than ordinary plant foods. Lōma works wonders with flowers and vegetables, too. On sale almost everywhere. Tennessee Corporation, 61 Broadway, New York, N.Y.

SOIL-PREP conditions light sandy or heavy clay soil. Rich in humus and available plant food. Far superior to manures and bone-meal. Holds moisture. Odorless. Free from weed seeds.

THROUGH A
Woman's Eyes
By JEAN NEWTON

THE ETERNAL OPTIMIST

"DEAR Jean Newton—I have a friend, thirty years old, who is going to marry a man who irritates her in a great many ways, with the idea that after marriage she can change those ways. She claims that she cares for him and that no one is perfect, and that after they are married he will correct the mannerisms that annoy her.

"What do you think of it?"

One of the world's most ancient fallacies is that of a woman who marries a man to reform him, or with the hopes of reforming him.

And it is an excessively feminine fallacy. Men either like a woman well enough to marry her or they don't. If they do, they like her as she is. If they don't, they don't marry her. Of course they frequently find flaws enough after marriage. But we have yet to meet a man who is impressed with faults in a woman and marries her anyway with the quixotic optimism that marriage will change her for the better!

It is almost too obvious to point out that what a man will not do to please a woman when he is courting her, he will not do after he has won her! And if a woman conceals from him before marriage her dislike of the things she hopes to correct in him, she is making a dishonest start and building the happiness of both on a very shaky foundation.

Not only does a man object to being prodded after marriage into changing his little personal habits and the way he wants to live, but there is this other point. He is certain to resent such an attempt on the part of his wife as indicating a lack of real love for him. We all want to be loved for what we are, not for what we may appear to be. And the discovery that one who seemed to accept us has done so with reservations is a bitter pill which may leave a very dark brown flavor.

OUR DAILY PATTERN

A Smart Suit Style

7823. Youthful and up-to-date is this trim little model. It consists of a two piece straight line skirt cut with comfortable fulness, and a short jacket with box-lines, and sleeves cut in one with shaped yoke sections. Patch pockets, ever serviceable, trim the fronts, which lap below the yoke line, and close with a single button. Tweed in wool or in silk weaves, crepe or printed silk is suggested for this stylish suit.

Designed in 6 sizes: 14, 16, 18 and 20, with corresponding bust size 33½, 35, 36½ and 38, and also in 40 and 42. Size 18 if made as in the large view will require 2¾ yards of 54 inch material and 1¾ yard of 39 inch lining. The jacket alone will require 2¼ yards if made of 39 inch material and the skirt alone will require 2 yards. The width of the skirt at the lower edge is 1⅝ yard.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in coin or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Kingston, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

Minor Details of Major Importance

New York.—Your pockets need not be lined with gold to have them outlined with it. Gilt really, but the style standard is just as high. Here is the way Lucien Lelong does it, and take note of the fetching slot through which the ends of the scarf are slipped. Incidentally the scarf has big gold coins embroidered on it, a fashion meeting with current approval, not alone on woolens but on cottons, even sheer ones like organdie.

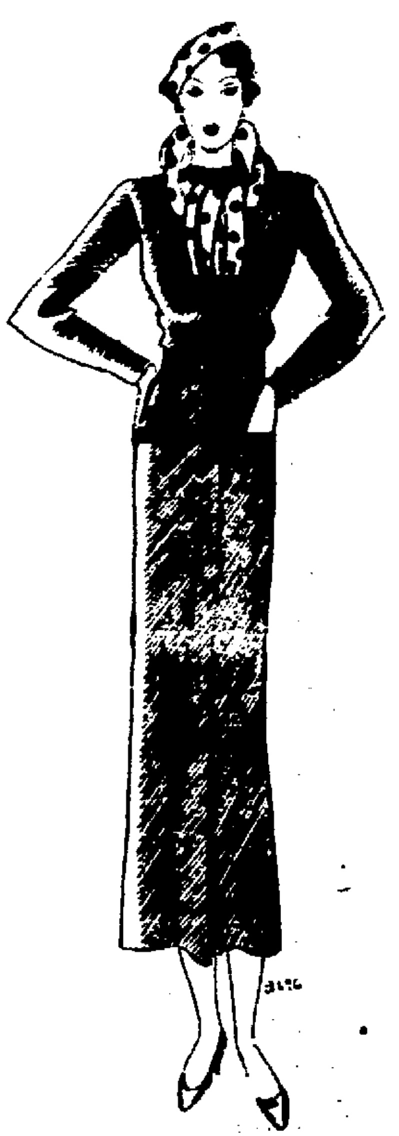
Gold braid and gold buttons add a military note to the many other notes already being heard. For that matter, one can hardly go wrong on buttons; every kind are being worn, some merely for decoration and some actually for use. The big ones are stunning in wood or metal or rhinestones, the tiny ones, the sort that go right down the back, for instance, are nice when covered.

Clips and bar pins and all manner of good looking "costume jewelry" trimmings are in vogue, including bracelets that have been widened until they substitute for cuffs. Jewelry is inclined to be a weighty matter.

They are naturally linked up with mannish fashions, such as cuff pins and the elongated pins which hold scarfs in position. With scarfs so much in evidence as they will be when tailored suits and spring coats get in action, new ways of wearing them are as important as the scarfs themselves. Huge taffeta bows are among the reigning favorites. So-called necktie or cravat silks are also used for this purpose, although they have been used even more extensively for dresses of the shirtwaist variety.

Among the other minor notes that are of major importance are boutonnieres of several kinds, pique, patent leather, dress fabrics and, of course, lingerie and millinerly flowers. Flowers are naturally "in". Milliners have dared to use them for entire hats, which is not as 19th century as it sounds. There are ever so many flat arrangements on hats and some that are not so flat. Veils, of course, are an Easter certainty; the modern girl seems to prefer them of crin, or horse hair, for this makes them flare in a sort of halo, which is different looking.

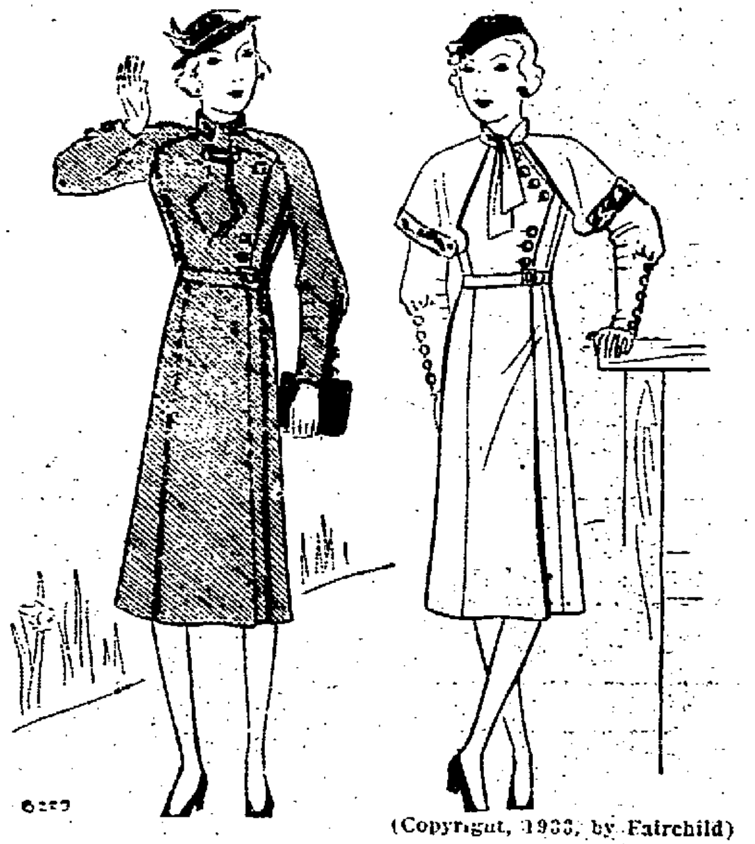
GILT EDGED POCKETS



(Copyright, 1933, by Fairchild)

The pockets of this tailored frock of brown woolen are embroidered at the edges with dull gold thread, and the same embroidery marks the wide slit through which pass the scarf ends. The scarf, of rust colored woolen, is embroidered in brown and gold dots.

Salute the Military Model



(Copyright, 1933, by Fairchild)

Bronze Green wool crepe is used for the coat at the left which is as interesting from the back as the front, the back having a deep yoke and pointed tip panel. Note the interesting side-closing, novelty buttons and clasp holding the cravat-like scarf in place. Another detail of interest is the cut of the sleeve, which has bloused fulness just below the elbow.

Again fulness at the elbow in the coat of apple green matelasse type crepe (right) which has a detachable cape with an upstanding collar terminating into narrow scarf ends. It is bordered with gray sleek kid. The side-closing treatment and decorative use of buttons, self-covered, are other noteworthy points.

DOES RINSO MAKE DISHWASHING ANY EASIER?
YOU BET! GREASE JUST VANISHES IN THOSE SUDS. PRESTO! AND THEY'RE DONE. SAVES YOUR HANDS, TOO

No more dishpan blues!

PUT your dishes to soak in thick Rinso suds. Let the grease and food particles float off. Rinse in hot water—and let them drain dry. There you are! Sparkling clear dishes in no time. So easily! Even greasy pots and pans come clean as a whistle—quickly!

Rinso suds are so rich they loosen the most stubborn grease, yet they are kind to the hands—keep them from getting red and rough-looking.

A little Rinso gives a lot of suds—even in hardest water. Soaks clothes whiter without scrubbing or boiling. Get the BIG package.

Hats Get Into Print

Printed blouses lend chic and feminity to suits, printed details are clever style points to dark frocks. Printed accessories are in the style mood. To link up the costume appropriately, and this is most important this season, the printed hat is being done. It may be a prim geometric for the tailored suit, making a sailor or cuff turban with lines attuned. Or it may be a veritable flower garden of a print in a graceful capeline to wear with a matching luncheon frock or one in plain color. It may be covered with crin or mounted on satin split.

In any case, the printed hat is a definite appeal.

Brick Buys a Kimono

By KATHLEEN MALLORY

[illegible] by McClure Newspaper Syndicate

B[illegible] saw the kimono [illegible] weeks ago. It wasn't really a kimono. That was just Brick's ignorance. It was really a gorgeous blue chiffon velvet négligée. Mr. Bonner had bought it. It was late at night and Brick had tiptoed to the kitchen for a drink of water.

Drinking the water, he had overheard Mr. Bonner talking to Mumsy. He liked Mr. Bonner. He never forgot to bring him something. It was always there on the breakfast table next morning. "The most wonderful thing!" He was hearing: "Jerry, you angel! . . . It's too sweet of you for words, but I can't let you. You're a darling . . . the best friend a woman ever had, but it's impossible . . . I'll shut my eyes and pretend . . . forever after that it's mine, when I'm wearing that ragged, shabby old thing in there."

Brick's breath expelled in a long breath that was almost a sob. He peeked through the crack of the swinging door to the living room. His mother stood facing him, holding the gorgeous blue "kimono" up to her shoulders. Regretfully, she began folding it carefully back into its tissue wrappings.

"Don't be absurd, Sylvia," Jerome Bonner was speaking gruffly. "That's my birthday gift to you. I shall be away next month and I wanted you to have it in time. Don't spoil my fun, please, old girl. I get such a kick out of doing it for you."

"Please, Jerry," Brick's mother said thickly, "don't. Bring me some little trinket that's inexpensive."

"Sylvia . . . let me take care of you . . . always! Please, dear, I love you so."

"Now, Jerry! You know how things are. I'm going to bring Brick up first. My first duty is to him. And . . . why Jerry, I've a fine young man to take care of me. I want nothing in this world beyond my home, here, and Brick!"

Brick had crept off to bed, shivering. Gosh. She had said he was enough.

Then he saw it again. Three days later. It was in a shop window, and there was nothing else there. Only the blue kimono. Some way, somehow, he must get that blue kimono for mumsy.

He went in and priced it. He nearly fell over when the lady said twenty-five dollars. She might as well have said twenty-five hundred. Gosh. That was the same price as the bicycle.

But now the bike was forgotten. Each night, when he was through peddling his papers, he went to stare, fascinated, at the blue kimono. Mumsy's birthday was next week, too.

He used to worry about it, as he peddled papers. If someone else bought it, first! Seven bucks saved. Gee, how could he make it? Three more days. He couldn't make it.

Then several things happened. Mumsy was working in a store, part time, and he was alone one night. In the closet, looking for a book stored away he came across the picture. It was his father, he knew that. Mumsy had told him. Her eyes had looked all scrunchy when she told him. He never asked her any more about him. But he knew he was alive.

Then one day Brick's father bought a paper from him. Brick knew him instantly. The same face, only the hair was gray now. Expensive fur coat. Costly clothes. "A Post, sonny. Keep the change"—two dimes.

The day before mumsy's birthday, the man stopped again. It was cold. Brick's fingers were numb with cold. He dropped his papers, and his hat fell off. The man bit off an exclamation. "My God," he said, "the same hair even!" Then hoarsely, "Here, Sonny . . . get yourself something. A bike . . . shoes!" Brick stared at the fifty dollar bill, as the man jumped into a taxi and drove off. Only that noon he had seen the man's smiling face in the tabloids he had sold along State street. "Noted actor celebrates new hit by marrying leading lady."

He began to shiver, but not with cold. Frantically, he searched his paper bag and found the tabloid: the last remaining one. There it was. "State Street Theater." Brick started toward State street. He borrowed an envelope from the cashier. On it, he wrote his own name. It was also his father's. He knew that, now, from the tabloids. Rick Chandler, Star of New Moon. Inside, he tucked the fifty-dollar bill. It was his defeated hope of ever owning the blue kimono or the new bike. But he did not falter. Mumsy would want him to.

On the way he saw the sign. "We buy old bikes." Brick went in. He came out, minus his dilapidated old bike, but richer by ten dollars. He'd get another, some day. Now he'd get mumsy a birthday present. A blue kimono.

Brick raced to the shop. He nearly suffocated with joy. Marked down to nineteen fifty!

He stole into the house. In the hall a glittering object arrested him. It was a new bike. It was the New Bike! But Brick didn't stop. He took the stairs on high.

"Hey, Mom! Hey, Looky! I bought you a present!" "Brick, you angel!" Sylvia held up the blue négligée. Tears sparkled in her lashes. "Brick, it's the most divine thing! How did you dream I wanted one?" Brick swaggered. He strutted.

"Oh . . . girls like a kimono," he said nonchalantly.

Resources of North Carolina state banks were increased about $5,900,000 during the last quarter of 1932, says the state banking department.

Atharhacton Club Entertains

The Atharhacton Club very delightfully entertained the Monday Club on Wednesday evening at the home of its president, Mrs. Cornelius Treadwell, when the club presented two one-act plays given by its members, with an introduction and greetings given by Mrs. Treadwell. The first play was in the nature of a romantic tragedy and was beautifully acted with just enough ironical humor to keep it from being too distressing. The play was "The Merry Merry Cuckoo" by Jeanette Marks with the scene laid in Wales. The cast was as follows: David, Miss Noone; Annie, his wife, Miss Nelson; Pastor Norris, Mrs. Kinsman; Lowry Prichard, a neighbor, Miss Hull; Guto Prichard, another old neighbor, Miss Hoysradt. The acting was remarkably fine in every way leaving the tragedy one of tenderness. The second play was very decidedly a comedy of the folk play type and was laid in darkey-land in our south. "Companion-mate Maggie" by Helen Dortch was convulsingly funny with each actress very clever. This cast was composed as follows: Maggie Pollock, alias Marguerite Stanley, Mrs. Fessenden; Ira, her father, Mrs. Stelle; Kate, her stepmother, Miss Smith; Wilbur Johnson, her more or less companionate husband, Mrs. Palen; Leonidas Norwood, her true lover, Mrs. Dunbar. In addition to the excellence of the acting which was most entertaining the settings for each play were unique in their cleverness and realism. A social hour followed the performances during which delicious light refreshments were served.

Rev. Gates Was the Speaker

That the nation which persecutes the Jews brings about its downfall in so doing was told to the mass meeting protesting against the treatment of Jews in Germany at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium Wednesday by the Rev. Goodrich Gates, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, and not the Rev. Robert L. Ross, who was unable to attend the meeting.

About the Folks

Miss Agnes Pillsworth and Miss Betty Blair have returned home from a visit in New York city.

Mayor Eugene B. Carey is reported as daily showing a slight improvement at the Benedictine Hospital.

Mrs. Emma Keenan of 86 Brewster street is a patient at the Benedictine Hospital under the care of Dr. Goodyear and Dr. O'Meara.

Mrs. Harold Atkins of 482 Wilbur avenue, who underwent an operation last Friday at the Benedictine Hospital, is improving greatly under the care of Dr. Sills.

Elizabeth M. Hale, of East Paterson, N. J., formerly of this city, who went under an operation four weeks ago, has returned to her home and is doing nicely under the care of Dr. Pollet and Dr. Marini of Passaic, N. J.

Revenue Bonds

Albany, N. Y., March 30 (AP)—The signature of Governor Lehman was still fresh today on a bill giving counties the right to issue revenue bonds or certificates of indebtedness in anticipation of the payment of taxes due last year. The measure, in the form of an amendment to the general county law, was sponsored by Assemblyman Edwin W. Wallace, Nassau Republican.

Mrs. Alice Van Slyke Dead.

New York, March 30 (AP)—Mrs. Alice Van Slyke, widow of Charles Eli Van Slyke, died at her home in Carthage, N. Y., last night after a long illness. She was 82 years old. Mrs. Van Slyke was widely known in this section and for half a century was active in church and civic work here and in other upstate communities. She was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Grangers Threaten "Telephone Strike"

Watertown, N. Y., March 30 (AP)—A threat of a "telephone strike" by Grange members in five northern New York counties today was answered by the New York Telephone Company with a refusal to make a 25 per cent reduction in the basic phone rate as demanded, according to Hubert Hall, chairman of the tax committee of the Jefferson County Pomona Grange.

The refusal, said Mr. Hall, came in a letter from Lloyd E. Allen, manager of the Watertown office of the Telephone Company. Mr. Allen was quoted as writing that "the interests of all customers can be served by not disturbing the rate schedule at this critical time."

Members of the Granges of Jefferson, Lewis, St. Lawrence, Franklin and Oswego counties joined at a recent conference in the demand for a reduction and threatened to have their phones removed if [illegible] had not been made by April [illegible]

Study Plan For Relief Bond Issue

Albany, N. Y., March 30 (AP)—Governor Lehman and legislative leaders are thinking over today a proposal for a $50,000,000 bond issue for unemployment relief in New York state next fall and winter.

With applications for relief pouring in at an increase of more than 1,000 a day for several months, members of the temporary emergency relief administration recommended the new bond issue at a conference with Governor Lehman and legislative leaders last night.

Advisability of passing a measure for the bond issue during the present session of the legislature so that it might be passed upon by referendum vote at the general election next fall was under consideration today.

Delicate Instrument

The falling of an ounce of metal from a height of one inch into the diaphragm of a telephone receiver will be heard in 14,222,000 Bell telephones for one hour and twenty minutes.

Farmers and Troopers Clash in Milk Strike

Rochester, N. Y., March 30 (AP)—Violence marked the second day of Rochester's milk strike as picketing farmers went after [illegible] waters of the milk war, leading into the city [illegible] determined to cut off the milk supply of the Dairymen's League Cooperative Association.

At least two men were injured as the producers continued to stop trucks and dump the cargoes in the road.

Sam Hanna, 22, of Avon, was taken to Strong Memorial Hospital for treatment of severe scalp lacerations after a clash with troopers just outside the city.

John Burgett, 22, of Avon was knocked down and bruised when a police car brushed through a mob of strikers at West Henrietta.

Hanna was injured when a truck from Avon under state trooper escort was attacked and an attempt made to dump the milk. In a moment clubs were swinging and there were many bruised heads.

The strikers maintained their cordon about the city in undiminished numbers in spite of fifty state troopers mobilized from all parts of western New York. A force of 20 Monroe county deputy sheriffs was assigned to escort the Dairymen's League trucks. It was not possible to guard every truck and on many highways the forcible dumping of milk continued.

In some instances even the convoys of armed troopers did not discourage the strikers from attempting to stop trucks. At Dowd's Corners on the Palmyra highway a group of 105 farmers attacked a large truck belonging to the Dairymen's League despite the presence of Sergeant Kemp and five state troopers.

Despite the thousands of gallons dumped yesterday by farmers who destroyed their product rather than accept the market price, and thousands of gallons more poured out of trucks stopped by force, there was no milk famine apparent in the city.

Howard McClenathan, district head of the Dairymen's League, said his organization would supply the dealers with whom it has contracts. Albert Woodhead, president of the Western New York Milk Producers Association, which called the strike yesterday, said the strike would continue [illegible] granted legislative relief.

5-Day Week Approved By Senate Committee

Washington, March 30 (AP)—The Black five-day week six-hour day bill was approved by the Senate judiciary committee today by a vote of [illegible] to [illegible].

The measure introduced last session by Senator Black (D., Ala.) would compel all industries to enforce the shorter work week.

Under an amendment offered by the Alabaman and approved by the committee, the legislation would become effective 30 days after its enactment and remain in force for two years.

One Death Here In Measles Epidemic

Child Developed Pneumonia Following Attack While Measles Proved Fatal on Wednesday—Five Deaths Reported—Over 800 Cases Since First of Year

Kingston's first fatality in the measles epidemic was reported to the health board on Wednesday, that of a child who, after an attack of the measles developed pneumonia. Dr. [illegible] Sanford, health officer, in commenting on the case, said considering the fact that since the first of the year over 800 cases of measles had been reported in the city that Kingston has been fortunate during the present epidemic.

As a rule measles are not fatal but it is the after effects that are to be feared. Dr. Sanford said that the majority of the cases reported in the city had been mild.

At the alumni luncheon speeches were given by Dr. James O. Schoonmaker, president of the association; Dr. Lawrence H. VandenBerg, present principal of the Normal; Dr. Charles C. Ward, director of training of the State Department of Education, and Dr. Myron T. Scudder. There were 140 present. Music was also an added delight to the affair. Miss Adelaide Wixon of the Class of 1895, who is at present home on leave from the University of Nanking, China, was present. Others attending from New Paltz were Miss Anne Morgan, Miss Julia D. Linsley, Miss Esther Bensley, Miss Jennie Lee Dann, Miss Losel, Miss Grace MacArthur, Miss Gertrude Nichols, Miss Olds, Miss Strobel, Miss Thompson, Edgar V. Beebe and Emory Jacobs.

On March 31, Pi Sigma Lamba Sorority will conduct an informal dance at Vassar Inn, Poughkeepsie. Irving Lorns' orchestra will play. Mr. and Mrs. L. Schonberger and Mr. and Mrs. I. Diamond will be the chaperones. Chairman of arrangements is Miss Leona Pearson of Beacon, and the committee Alice Stein, Clara Schonberger, Grace Diamond and Gertrude Silber.

Miss Seirita Starr, a student, is ill with the measles.

The program in the Normal School chapel on Tuesday morning, March 28, opened by the assembly singing "Come Thou Almighty King." Part of the fourth chapter of Second Corinthians was read by Miss Grace MacArthur. Lord's Prayer. Announcements by Miss MacArthur. The Freshmen Class had charge of the morning entertainment. They presented the one act play, "A Matter of Choice," directed by Miss Ruth Kline, a member of the Senior Class. Two Freshmen played two medleys as a piano duet. There was a special Paltzonian announcement in the form of a skit.

Oregon's half million tourist visitors last year had an average stay in the state of 10.8 days.

THE GREAT ATLANTIC & PACIFIC

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

By The Associated Press.

Newport, Ore., March 30 (AP)—A young pound sea lion swam on to the beach here recently and was placed in captivity. After keeping him seven days during which several thousand tourists came to see him, he was released to make his way seaward. He swam out a short distance, paused, and then, resolutely making up his mind, turned and came back to the beach. Interested visitors are still passing him the same.

It's That Boiler Again.

Milwaukee, Wis.—It was just a joke to James Murphy, when he was brought before Judge George Shaughnessy in municipal court.

"Something tells me, judge," he explained, "that the house of correction boiler is on the fritz again. I'm a boilermaker and every time they need me at the work house they send out word to pick me up for being drunk."

The judge nodded and said: "That should take about 90 days, and see that you do a good job."

Fireman, Save My Cat.

Greenwich, Conn.—Fireman James Prately was so badly scratched and bitten by a treed cat that Chief Isaac M. Hubbard ruled against future rescues of this kind on private property. The edict will not apply, however, to cats wise enough to choose trees on public property.

Life in the Open Spaces.

Bend, Ore.—Fey Robideau, trapper, is back from his winter's work with a real hard luck story. During the entire winter, he declared, he was able to trap but one animal, a skunk. On his way to Bend from the Cascades, just before he reached the city limits, he was bitten by a muskrat.

Checks Wife on Speedometer.

Chicago—Mrs. Loretta Radke alleged in a bill for divorce that her husband, Edward J., insisted on jotting down the mileage, measuring the gasoline and asking her how far she intended to go and why, every time she took the car out.

Once when she had to make a detour, he was angry, she complained.

A Close Shave.

Pana, Ill.—A New York Central passenger train, traveling at high speed, and an automobile arrived at a crossing at the same time.

A mile down the tracks, the crew lifted the car's radiator and two wheels from the locomotive pilot and started back to look for bodies. Instead they found the remainder of the automobile, upright, with windshield and windows unbroken and with its two occupants sitting inside, unscratched, but speechless from fright.

Boy—Call a Taxi.

Minneapolis—Golden Valley is the name of the village. It's a suburb of Minneapolis. And this is what the village council adopted as an ordinance for use after April 7:

"Any one who becomes drunk, intoxicated or disorderly shall immediately be placed in a closed automobile and safely conducted home at the expense of any licensee into whose place of business such drunken, intoxicated or disorderly person shall happen to wander, whether such licensee had anything to do with the condition of the drunk, intoxicated or disorderly person or not."

What's Going on Here?

Superior, Wis.—Police arrested Benjamin and Stephen Urvro, who allegedly removed a house from the property owned by H. C. Roth, on a charge of grand larceny. They said the house was on blocks and horses were pulling it away when they arrived.

At The Theatres

Today

Kingston: "Under Cover Man." Swell entertainment with George Raft in his best talkie characterization. This show is intensely exciting from start to finish, and Mr. Raft proves to be a versatile and engaging actor. The story concerns the bond racket, with Mr. Raft up to his ears in trouble most of the time. Nancy Carroll, Lew Cody, Gregory Ratoff and Roscoe Karns are featured in the supporting cast. Adult entertainment that is thoroughly enjoyable.

Orpheum: "Night Mayor" and "Love in High Gear." The life of a big city mayor, especially his night life, is the theme of the first talkie, starring Lee Tracy, and featuring Barbara Weeks, Evalyn Knapp, Warren Hymer and Eugene Pallette. "Love in High Gear" has a cast that includes Alberta Vaughn, Harrison Ford and Tyrrell Davis.

Broadway: "Iron Master" and "Maylay Nights." The first double feature is the story of a laborer who becomes a millionaire. The cast is headed by Reginald Denny and Lila Lee. "Maylay Nights" is a melodrama of the Maylay pearl beds, with a cast that includes Johnny Mack Brown, Dorothy Burgess, Ralph Ince, Raymond Hatton, Carmelita Geraghty and Lionel Belmore.

Tomorrow

Kingston: Same.

Orpheum: "Attorney for the Defense" and "Gold". Edmund Lowe is the star of the first attraction, the exciting story of a young attorney implicated in murder. This talkie moves along in whirlwind fashion, and is good for an evening of real entertainment. Constance Cumings and Evelyn Brent are also in the cast. "Gold", a western thriller, offers Jack Hoxie in the saddle with Alice Day contributing the romance.

Broadway: Same.

New Milk Bill.

Albany, N. Y., March 30 (AP)—A new complication was brought into the controversy over the state milk control today by the introduction of a new bill by Assemblyman Frank M. Smith, Otsego, Republican and chairman of the agricultural committee in the lower house. The Smith bill embodies most of the recommendations asked by the Dairymen's League Co-operative Association and other distributing agencies. Senator Perley A. Pitcher of Watertown, head of the Legislative Milk Investigating Committee, is insisting on his original bill which is still awaiting action of the legislature.

Robins find their food by the sense of sight. They see their prey in the grass—and turn their heads from side to side because they do not have a binocular vision and cannot focus both eyes on a near object.

You have more time

Any salesman can do a better job if he lets the telephone help him.

He can cover his territory more consistently—give more time to present customers—reach many customers who are too far off the regular route to make a visit in person profitable—and develop new customers.

for Selling . . .

The telephone supplements the salesman's personal calls. A telephone selling plan combining telephone calls with his visits in person will promote sales and reduce sales costs.

It will not cost you anything or obligate you in any way to find out how a plan of selling by telephone can be coordinated with your calls in person. Just ask the operator for the Business Office—tell them you'd like to talk to someone about telephone selling plans—and a special representative will call at your convenience.

PUT AWAY your mixing-bowl and beater. You can get just as tasty mayonnaise from an Ivanhoe jar as you ever prepared in your own kitchen.

How is this possible? By the homelike way in which we develop the Ivanhoe flavor. First, we balance the finest seasonings so as to accent their piquancy and subdue their native harshness. Then we improve the richness and creaminess of Ivanhoe by using an extra quantity of egg-yolks. Finally, by a unique method of beating, we create the flavor-blend that makes this mayonnaise so pleasing.

Enjoy its delicate flavor yourself. Ivanhoe comes to you with all its original fresh creamy goodness guarded by the Ivanhoe seal of protection. And notice that this jar, when empty, is ideal to use at preserving-time. Sold at good grocers in quarts and pints. Ivanhoe Foods Inc., Auburn, N. Y.

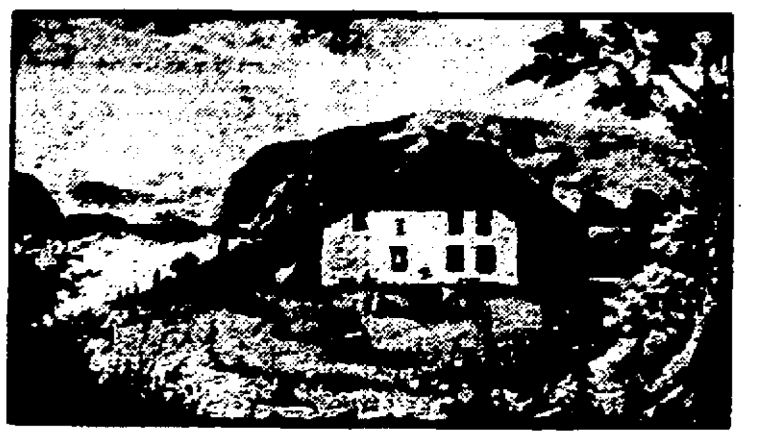
The WORLD of STAMPS

By QUINTON JAMES

Although Washington's headquarters at Newburgh, N. Y., are still standing, the design for the Newburgh three-cent stamp will be taken not from a photograph of the old Dutch farmhouse, but from the engraving of it by James Smillie, who emigrated to this country from Scotland in 1829.



Here is the Dutch farmhouse at Newburgh, N. Y., from which Washington issued his proclamation of peace with the British. The picture is reproduced from the engraving on which is based the design for the first stamp to be issued under the new administration.

First to be issued under the new administration, the stamp will commemorate the proclamation of peace with the British issue by Washington from the house on April 19, 1783. It will be placed on sale at Newburgh on April 19 and at the post office philatelic agency in Washington a day later.

The stamp, to be printed in purple ink, will have a narrow double border. "U. S. Postage" will be printed in a panel at the top. Underneath, in small Gothic letters will be "Washington Headquarters Newburgh, N. Y., 1783-1933."

A staff from which flies an American flag with 13 stars will be shown in front of the house.

At the bottom of the design, in the center, will be a shield-shaped panel enclosing a "3." A folded ribbon will bear the word "three" on the left side of the shield and the word "cents" on the right side.

Vatican Series

A complete new series of Vatican stamps will appear soon.

The 5-centisimo design contains Pope Pius' coat-of-arms, surmounted by the tiara and surrounded by grain and eggs, the substances used in making the eucharist wafer.

The 10, 12½, 20 and 25 centesimo show in the background the apostolic palace where the pope lives, and in the foreground the central part of St. Peter's square.

The 30, 50, 75 and 80 centesimo show the Vatican gardens, with the dome of St. Peter's looming in the background.

The 1, 125, 2 and 2.75 lira reproduce a portrait of the pope with olive branches in the corners.

The 5, 10 and 20 lira depict the facade of St. Peter's with part of the Bernini colonnade.

The express stamps, of 2 lira for Italy and 2.50 for abroad, give an aerial view of the whole of Vatican City.

History of New Paltz Read to Rotarians

Dutch to English. Cromwell and his parliament deposed King Charles I, executed him in 1649, and set up a protectorate which lasted until Cromwell's death in 1658. He was succeeded by his son who resigned after a year. England was now without a sovereign. So Parliament asked Charles II, son of Charles I, who had fled to France to return and he was established on the throne. This is known as the Restoration. War with Holland soon followed. Charles II gave his brother, the Duke of York, all the territory between the Connecticut and Delaware Rivers, now practically settled by the Dutch. This alien settlement between the New England colonies and the Southern Plantations, both of which were English, irritated the English and they decided to get rid of it. So one morning in September 1664 an English fleet appeared in the harbor of New Amsterdam and demanded surrender, which Gov. Stuyvesant granted after much discussion.

By 1663 a score or more of the Huguenots had come to Wiltwyck. Before this time Wiltwyck had become crowded, that is the stockade about the city had become too small, and a "New Village" was started where Hurley now stands. The Indians were very much worried over the coming of the whites and the expansion of the settlement to the New Village and threatened vengeance. In June 1663 the Director General of the Province ordered the magistrates to announce to the chiefs that he expected to visit them in a few days. The Indians said if peace was his object they would meet his unarmed attendants outside of the stockade as was their custom. This friendly reply put the settlers off their guard. On June 7, 1663 nearly all of the men had left the village to work in the fields. Between 11 and 12 a. m. large crowds of Indians had entered the settlement and scattered through the place, offering to sell maize and beans, &c. Soon after, several horsemen came riding through the gate, shouting that the Indians had burnt the New Village (Hurley). This was the signal for a general assault. People were killed, houses were plundered and set on fire. After 12 buildings had been destroyed, a change in the wind saved the rest. All of the buildings in the New Village (Hurley) had been destroyed except the mill. Seventy people were missing, 45 of whom were taken captive. Among them were the wife and three children of Louis Du Bois. Three months later Capt. Krieger, sent from New Amsterdam, went after the prisoners and men from the New Village (Hurley) went with him. The most anxious of these was Louis Du Bois. Before the soldiers came Louis DuBois and his friends who had lost wives or children as captives did all they could to find where the captives were, but little was accomplished as no one knew the country well enough to act as guide without getting lost. Expeditions were made into the wilderness wherever news could be obtained of an Indian encampment. These expeditions yielded little booty, few prisoners or a white captive. On expedition with wagons, cannon and 200 men went Warwarsing where was the communal home of all the Esopus Indians but the fort was abandoned before the party got there but they destroyed what was left of the fort. Later they heard that the Indians were guarding a large party of captives at Shawangunk where the Indians were building a fort to take the place of the one the soldiers had destroyed at Warwarsing. It was these Indians that Capt. Krieger went after. A captured Indian was taken as a guide with this injunction that if he deceived the captain he would be killed, but if the prisoners were retaken he would be rewarded. The camp of the Indians was along the Wallkill near which was an abundance of game. The Indian told Capt. Krieger that they must go to the first big water from Wiltwyck, the Rondout Creek, follow that to the next big water, the Wallkill, and follow that to the third big water, the Shawangunk Kill. The party crossed the Rondout Creek below Dosendale, came up on the west side of the Wallkill, passed Dashville Falls, passed across the flats where Springtown hamlet now is and continued to the Shawangunk Creek, where they found the encampment of the Indians.

There is a story, accepted by some and denied by others, that Indians were preparing to burn the prisoners at the stake as a revenge against Gov. Stuyvesant who had sent about 20 Indians to be slaves in Island of Curacoa. The squaws were sent to get faggots which were laid in piles about the stakes. The white women were brought forward and it only remained to apply the fire. Catherine Du Bois, wife of Louis Du Bois, began to sing a hymn based on the 137th Psalm, "By the waters of Babylon we sat down, &c". She had often sung to the Indians who were delighted to hear her. No Indian woman ever sang as she sang. Catherine thought that by singing she would gain time at least or she may have had a presentiment that help was near. Suddenly a shot rang out and some strange hounds sprang into the circle of listeners. The Indians shouted "White man's dogs" and rushed for their bows and arrows, but the soldiers were so close on them that resistance was in vain and the chief and many of his warriors were slain. After the recapture of the prisoners, all returned to New Village, (Hurley), the way they came. With their errand finished they had time to look at the fertile flats, already cleared of wilderness, opposite the present village of New Paltz.

There were so many Huguenots in the New Village (Hurley) that they wanted a home of their own. It occurred to Louis Du Bois that the fertile land he had seen along the Wallkill when he returned from the recapture of his wife would be a good place to locate. Therefore in May 1677 he and his associates purchased from the Indians a large tract of land, about 144 square miles or over 92,000 acres, extending from Mohonk north to Bonteco (Spotted Cow) and from both of these points to the Hudson River. They bought this land as they remembered too well the trouble with the Indians at New Village (Hurley) where land had been obtained from the Indians by promises which had not been fulfilled. These broken promises had resulted in the attacks on Wiltwyck and Hurley. The price paid for this land was 40 kettles, 40 axes, 40 adzes, 40 shirts, 400 fathoms of white net work (fish net?), 300 fathoms black net work, 60 pairs stockings, 100 bars lead, 1 keg of powder, 100 knives 4 kegs wine, 40 oars, 40 pieces duffel (heavy woven cloth), 60 blankets, 100 awls, 100 needles, 1 measure of tobacco, 1 stallion and 1 mare.

Eleven men were associated with Louis Du Bois who thought they should have a patent from Gov. Andros in order to have official title to this land. Abraham Hasbrouck, one of the twelve, had served with Andros in the English army. Through his influence the obtaining of the patent was easy. The twelve men to whom the patent was given were known as Patentees. Their names were Louis Du Bois, Abraham Du Bois, Isaac DuBois, (father and two sons), Christian Deyo and Pierre Deyo (father and son), Abraham Hasbrouck and Jean Hasbrouck (brothers), Andries Le Fever and Jean Le Fevre (brothers), Louis Devier, Antone Crispell, and Hugo Frere. All of the Patentees were residents of Hurley, no one of them came from Kingston. The treaty with the Indians was made at Hurley, where Louis Du Bois was a magistrate. Antone Crispell never left Hurley and his descendants still live there. It is likely that the old stone houses in Hurley were once owned by the Patentees.

The agreement with the Indians was written in Dutch and signed by all of the Patentees except Louis Devier, why he did not sign is not known. The patent which was granted by Andross in 1677 was in English and Louis Bevier's name appears as one of the Patentees. All of the Patentees were Frenchmen who spoke and wrote French, yet the patent was in English although English had not become the official language of the colony even if it was 13 years after the end of Dutch occupancy. All of the papers connected with the purchase from the Indians and the patent from Andross are in the Patentees' trunk in the county clerk's office in Kingston.

The patent from Andross was not a quit claim deed. We quote from it, "Louis Du Bois and his heirs and assigns shall pay yearly and every year unto His Royal Highness, James, Duke of York and Albany, for his Highness use as an acknowledgment of quit rent, at the Redoute (Rondout) in Esopus 5 bushels of good winter wheat unto such officers as are empowered to receive the same, but first there shall be a redoute of retreat and safeguard on occasion", i.e. if needed. Now everything was ready for the Patentees to take possession of their land. With their household goods in three carts they came along the west shore of the Rondout creek to Rosendale, thence through Rosendale Plains and Springtown along the west shore of the Wallkill. They stopped finally near the present Arbuckle Farm. They called the spot Tri Cor which means three carts and started to make their settlement on the flats in front of the present farm-house. These lands had been cleared many years before by the Indians and planted with corn and beans. The Patentees were advised by a friendly Indian to move to the other side of the stream where they would not be bothered by the spring freshets. The first cabins followed the river where Huguenot St. now runs. A running stream was a necessity to a French housewife on washday. The cabins were of logs with stone chimnies. All of the men helped each other to build the houses as well as to cultivate the crops. The largest house was that of Louis Du Bois and built so it could be used as a fort in case the Indians attacked them. This fort was required by Andross and was part of the agreement in the patent. This building was never used as a fort or as a place of refuge as the Indians never troubled the inhabitants at all. This was because the New Paltz people had honestly paid for the land and treated the Indians kindly. The last settlement of the red men was a small village on the south bank of the Plattekill Creek where it empties into the Wallkill on the farm formerly belonging to Elijah Woolsey.

Of course the village had to have a name. As most of the Patentees had come from the Palatinate along the Rhine where Manheim now is located, they called the village Pals or Pfals which in German means the same as Palastine. The word Paltz comes from a little principality in the Palatinate now incorporated in Baden. The words "New Paltz" are first used in a document dated 1682, five years after the settlement. The village was frequently mentioned as the "Paltz" without the prefix "New."

As soon as the Patentees had settled here, they made an equitable division of land. Each family portion was paced off and staked at the corners. These boundaries were never changed and special names were given to each field and some of these names survived for 200 years. The lands were first tilled in common and the crops equally divided. As the fields lay adjacent, a novel method of planting was adopted, to guard against confusion in case of sudden attack. All of the field paths and roads were made to converge at one point which was the fortified rendezvous of the settlement. At the first alarm each man ran along the path nearest to where he was standing and soon all were at the fort.

The chief monument of the Patentees are the stone houses on the present Huguenot street which were not built until about 25 years after the first settlement. The Memorial House was built by Jean Hasbrouck, the Patentee, in 1712. It was built large to provide room for the storage of grain. Until recently it remained in the possession of the Hasbrouck family. North of the Memorial House on the site of the original redoubt was built the Fort, the home of the descendants of Louis Du Bois. This was built in 1705. It was to this house that relatives from the country on cold Sundays came to fill their little foot-stoves with hot coals from the fireplace before going to church which was not heated. Portholes may still be seen in the wall next to the street. Across the street from the Fort is the Perier House, built at three different times, the last in 1735. This house is the only one having a sub-cellar to keep the wine from being pilfered. The stone part of Frank Le Fevre's house, formerly the Deyo house, is about the same age. Opposite the church is the Hasbrouck House built in 1729. The kitchen of this house was used as a place for cock-fighting. North of this is the Freer House. On the north end of present church yard was the house of Simon Le Fevre, the Patentee. It was torn down when the present church was built and the stones were used in its foundation. The Patentees seemed to have moved somewhat from their first location which was the knoll where the old Normal School was located, originally an old Indian burying ground.

How the Patentees conducted their worship, for they were a godly people, we do not know. But Louis Du Bois is mentioned as reading from the French Bible and offering prayers of thanksgiving and supplication. Such music as they had were the Psalms adapted for singing such as Catherine Du Bois is mentioned as singing when retaken by her husband. There was no regular minister until 1683 when the Rev. Pierre Daillie, Prof. of Theology in the University of Samur in France, and a minister of distinction in his own country. Louis Du Bois was the first elder and Hugo Frere was the first deacon. The services were conducted in French. Mr. Daillie died in 1715 and the Rev. David Bonrepos continued the ministry until 1734. From then there was no regular minister but the Patentees held services on their own account. This church is one of the few that has had continuous services since its foundation.

The Patentees being a godly people took care that their children should have some education. At first they were probably taught by their mothers. In 1689 Jean Cottin was given a house and lot and was to teach the children. He was also given wood for building and for firewood, pasturage for two cows and their calves, and for one mare and her colt. No mention is made of any salary in money. Probably he was paid in wheat, wool or flax. The final clause of his contract reads, "And we are not to keep said Cottin as schoolmaster longer than we think fit and proper." From 1696 to 1700 Jean Tebenin taught the school. A log schoolhouse was built at the same time as the log church. At times the classes were taught by the ministers. All of the preaching, teaching, and the daily conversation were in French. There is no record of a school building after the first log schoolhouse until the stone church built in 1717 was torn down in 1773 to build a larger church. The stones of the church of 1717 were used to build a schoolhouse on North Front street, which is still standing. The second story, built of wood, housed the classical department. My mother and my wife's father attended this school which was used until 1874 when a brick building was erected on North Church street. This brick building was used for a school until the children were taken to the grades of the first normal school building in 1884.

(The New Paltz academy was built in 1833, a frame building which burnt in 1884. A brick building on the same site became the normal school which was burnt in 1906 after which the school was erected in its present location. A prospectus of the Academy in 1835, which was then a boarding school, reads as follows: "The trustees have erected a spacious school and boarding house in one of the best locations in the country in the midst of romantic, fertile and healthy country, retired from noise, confusion and temptations, incident to thickly settled places. Communication with any part of the country is safe and easy. Mails pass and repass almost daily. Board may be had in respectable families for $1.50 per week.")

Our school bell has quite a history. Until the time the second stone church was built in 1773, over 100 years, the people were called to service by a horn. The proceding was not considered dignified enough for such a fine building as the new church and a bell, cast in New York city was bought. This was used until the present church was built in 1839, when it was found not to be large enough. It was banished to the cellar and later used in the stone schoolhouse on North Front street, and still later on the brick schoolhouse on North Church street. Finally it disappeared but was found later starting the horses at the racetrack across the river. It was rescued from this work and put in its present position on the normal school. This bell has been in use most of the time for the last 150 years.

You may be surprised to know that slavery was in full swing in New Paltz in the early days. It was a common practice and all persons of consequence were expected to have slaves. The more slaves the greater the consequence. However, there was an act in 1799 that gradually abolished slavery. In 1755 there were 28 slaveholders which was after increased to 51 as is evidenced by the enrollment in their names of the slave children born of their slaves. David Woolsey, one of my ancesters, was a slave holder. There were nearly 100 slaves here at one time.

There were many different ways of spelling family names. Each one spelled his name as he pleased. Even at baptism the minister spelled the name phonetically as it was mumbled to him by the embarrassed parents. The name of Deyo seems to have suffered most as it is spelled in 15 different ways, not including the present spelling of D-e-y-o (Deyou, Dujou, Doye, Deiou, Doyo, Dorau, Dofe, Dolau, DeYoo, Doyoie, Djou, Doloie, Doyeau, Deyau, Dolou). It is doubtful if any name has escaped being spelled in several different ways.

It is interesting to note the change of language in New Paltz. For 50 years the church records were kept in French, that is to 1739. For 70 years after that to 1800 they were kept in Dutch, since 1800 in English. The French ministers at first taught the children French. When there were no others to take their places, this language died out and Dutch took its place. The third generation of the children of the Patentees married Dutch girls. The Eltinges were the first Dutch to come to settle. They came in about 1723. The Dutch had planted a colony at Esopus many years before the French came and the church at Esopus was under the jurisdiction of the Dutch Reformed Church of Amsterdam in Holland. There were many marriages between the Eltinge (Dutch) and the Du Bois (French) families. The Dutch element was strong at Kingston and the French at Hurley and you will remember that all of the French Patentees came from Hurley. The Dutch probably filtered in from Kingston (Esopus) and when the French language died out it was naturally superseded by the Dutch. Before 1730 many Dutch families took their children to Kingston to be baptised at the Dutch church there as there was no minister at New Paltz at that time. The Dutch immigration slowly ceased and the inhabitants grew more and more of English stock, as New York had become an English colony. For some reason or other the Dutch language persisted until late into the Nineteenth century. Many people, grandparents of people now living in New Paltz spoke Dutch. My own grandmother who died in 1880 spoke Dutch better than she did English, although she was a descendant of the French Hugo Freer.

The government of New Paltz in the earliest period was a pure democracy. Heads of families gathered in a body to frame regulations for the general welfare. The seat of government, such as it was, was at Esopus (Kingston). They probably had a constable or police officer of some sort. No court records were kept in the early days and perhaps such a God-fearing people had no need of a court. Yet with the land boundaries so loosely determined as by a stake or a tree, it is a wonder that there was not any number of quarrels over fence lines. However, there is no early record of any such dispute. In 1711 the inhabitants of the village met and made regulations regarding the land to be fenced, the height of the fence, 6 rails high in some places, 3 rails high in others. At the same meeting rules were made concerning damage to crops by cattle. There was probably a public pound for stray cattle and there was a 9 pence fine for damage, half to the property owner, half to the village. Hogs were not allowed to run free but sheep were until they did damage in corn or pasture, when the owner was given a charitable warning to take care of them. If the sheep did any further damage the owner was fined 3 pence for each sheep. Horses which ran free on the common land were to be removed by September 30 or the owners fined. Each land owner must keep up his own fences or be fined 6 shillings or the fence viewers would make the fence and charge the expense to the owner.

The land first worked by the settlers lay at the rear of the present church and was worked in common at the beginning. In 1726 there were 24 landholders and at that time was instituted the government of the "Twelve Men" or the "Dusine," probably their way of spelling the French word Douzaine, whence our word, dozen. They were chosen annually and made rules about fence building and the division of the undivided land. They decided disputes until 1785 when their actions were questioned. Their acts were confirmed by a special act of the legislature. The Dusine were elected annually by a vive voce vote before the polls were opened for the election of other officers, which were chosen each year at town meeting. These men were descendants of the Patentees whom they represented. This government of the Dusine had no parallel in the colonial history of America. It was transplanted from the banks of the Rhine to the banks of the Wallkill. The document establishing the Dusine is in the County Clerk's office in Kingston. One peculiarity of the document is that each member of the Dusine promises to pay the sum of 50 pounds sterling for the non-performance of the duties enumerated in the document. Maybe nowadays we would get better service from our public servants if they would pledge themselves to pay a forfeit for failure to perform their duties.

REGULAR MEETING OF STONE RIDGE GRANGE

Stone Ridge, March 30.—On Monday night, March 20, Stone Ridge Grange met in regular session in the Stone Ridge Grange Hall. Approximately 20 members were present. Two guests from Rosendale Grange helped to swell the attendance and add to the enjoyment of the lecturer's hour.

In the absence of Brother LeRoy Styles Brother Ross Osterhoudt served as worthy master. Seldom does such an occasion arise because as was pointed out Brother Styles had a perfect record for Grange attendance up to March 20, not having been absent a single time in the 15 months he has served as master of Stone Ridge Grange. That stands as a silent tribute to the earnestness and zeal he has displayed as leader and as an active force to spur others, officers and members alike, to follow in his steps.

The lecturer's hour was given over to the playing of cards and dominoes.

All present then remained seated at their tables where delicious sandwiches of cream cheese and chopped nuts, ham, egg, and cheese and homemade sweet and sour pickles, cake and coffee were served by the refreshment committee of the evening.

The next regular meeting of the Grange will take place Monday evening, April 3.

BREAD and CLOTHING for TWENTY MILLION PEOPLE

Converting Great Quantities of Wheat and Cotton Into Bread and Clothing, a Gigantic Task, Accomplished by the American Red Cross.

FOR more than a year the needy of the nation have looked to the Red Cross for bread. For the last nine months families in distress have brought to the Red Cross their requests for clothing.

In so far as flour and cotton garments could meet these needs, the Red Cross has supplied them nation-wide.

Flour to make bread and more than a billion garments have been distributed in these months. They have gone into the homes of five million families—more than twenty million people have received benefits from them.

In all but a few of the 3,072 counties of the nation—and those few counties are in sparsely settled parts of the country—the Red Cross has carried this vital relief.

This program will be continued through the spring. Then the 85,000,000 bushels of Farm Board wheat voted by Congress for distribution by the Red Cross will have been exhausted. Thus far, 9,622,000 barrels of flour have gone into the homes. Some of the wheat also was used a year ago for stockfeed (this use is no longer possible) and in some localities it is cracked for cereal. In all, 80,135,851 bushels have been used thus far.

Sixty million yards of cotton cloth have been made into twenty million garments—underclothing, dresses, shirts, layettes. Men, women and children have been provided with suitable garments. A million children have been decently clad to go to school. This huge garment-making job was made possible by six hundred thousand women who spent hours at the sewing machines, giving freely of their time and labor, just as in the days of the World War, that this cloth might be made ready for the needy.

Cost Borne by Red Cross

Twenty-five million ready-made garments also were distributed by the Red Cross. These were cotton sweaters, knit underwear, hosiery, overalls, jumpers, knickers, pants—again clothing as adequately as possible children for school, men for work and women for their tasks.

Just as with the flour, distribution of clothing by the Red Cross is still being carried on. Blankets and comforters, sheets and pillow cases for the needy and sick, are now in process of delivery.

But as with the flour, the end is in sight. The raw cotton turned over to the Red Cross is about exhausted, just as is the wheat.

Seven-pound loaves for these children of foreign-born parents

The 85,000,000 bushels of wheat and 844,000 bales of cotton which Congress voted in March and July, 1932, respectively, to be distributed by the Red Cross to the nation's needy, were Farm Board surplus. They represented all of the surplus and now the Farm Board bins are scraped clear of wheat and the Farm Board has turned over its last cotton to the Red Cross.

Never before in the history of the world had a task like this of converting millions of bushels of wheat and millions of pounds of cotton into bread and clothing, for millions of families, been considered possible of accomplishment. Nor had such a plan ever been conceived of as being done by one single agency.

Economic conditions have everywhere imposed almost superhuman tasks upon the nation—and the successful culmination of this colossal Red Cross program is an outstanding example of relief-giving. It was made possible through a capable central organization, and through self-sacrificing chapter officers and volunteers in more than 3,600 communities of the country.

The cost of administering all of the complex operation of turning cotton into clothing and wheat into flour has been borne by the Red Cross. The estimated cost is more than $685,000 from the Red Cross treasury.

In addition to the direct benefit to the needy, the wheat and cotton programs have given work to thousands in flour and cotton spinning mills, in overall, sweater and other garment factories. Many factories, on the point of closing, had been kept open through receiving Red Cross orders for cloth and garments.

This work comprised only two of the relief measures which have been carried on by the national Red Cross during the depression.

In the 52 years' history of the organization such extraordinary widespread and prolonged demands for relief have never before been made upon it.

Unemployment Relief Widespread

Since the beginning of the depression the American Red Cross has expended $16,000,000 in carrying relief to the stricken within the borders of the United States, in disasters, as well as in aiding victims of unemployment and economic conditions.

In the present year alone, 25,000,000 persons have been on the Red Cross relief rolls. And in the past several years, in the drought affected areas, and in the sections where the miners have been so long unemployed, the Red Cross has met especially acute situations with months of organized relief giving.

This relief task of great magnitude has been carried on under the active supervision of Chairman John Barton Payne of the American Red Cross—under whose able direction for eleven years the Red Cross has met ever-increasing demands for quick and ready emergency relief.

OLD SORES

Wouldn't you be glad to learn how the pain and itching of old Sores, Ulcers and Itching Rashes can be stopped and the Sores healed in a few days? An amazing ointment is now doing these very things, and here's an instance:

"For 7 years I suffered untold agony with a Varicose Ulcer on my ankle. The first application of PETERSON'S OINTMENT took all pain away. In 4 weeks the ulcer healed up completely. I simply cannot say too much for your ointment."—Mrs. Fred B. Voight, [illegible] Telford St., Newark, N. J.

No wonder over 500,000 people to date have used PETERSON'S OINTMENT to make their skin gloriously smooth, healthy and free from Sores. You can do the same for only 35c at any drug store in America.—Advt.

Report Activities Of Volunteer Aid

Members of the Executive Committee of the Volunteer Aid Committee met at the home of the chairman, Mrs. Fred Snyder, on Tuesday evening last, and after some discussion it was decided to suspend operation indefinitely. There is still plenty of need but funds are lacking. The committee was organized last September primarily to purchase shoes for children of school age, but the activities of the committee broadened. All kinds of clothing were given out, and up until Christmas milk was furnished to needy families. The chairman has been untiring in her efforts, giving liberally of her time and energy in the purchasing and distributing of clothing. A complete report follows:

LATCH STRING AGAIN OUT AT SHOP IN THE GARDEN.

The Shop in the Garden at Stone Ridge will blossom forth again on April 1, reopening its doors to the public with its welcome of tea, toast and an array of fresh novelties for interested purchasers. The crocuses, flanking its entry, are already assuming their responsibilities for the occasion, and granted the boone of even a little sunshine, should be in gorgeous bloom upon the day of opening.

Miss Catherine Hasbrouck and Miss Anna Budenbach have just returned from their winter tour through the south, during which they visited many novelty shops and tea rooms in a canvass for new articles and ideas.

Missionary Meeting

American Heroines

By LOUISE M. COMSTOCK

Ida Lewis

IF ENGLAND can point with pride to Grace Darling, the famous "lighthouse girl," who in 1846 rescued five from a sinking vessel off Longstone lighthouse and made possible the saving of two more, America can boast of Ida Lewis, who saved twenty-two lives between 1857 and 1894.

Ida was born in 1841 at Newport, R. I. When she was fifteen her father, Capt. Hosea Lewis, was appointed keeper at Lime Rock lighthouse, in Newport harbor, and moved there with his family. Shortly afterwards the father having become a paralytic, the stalwart young daughter undertook to take upon herself some of his duties, and thus became an able oarswoman, strong and fearless, capable of handling a small boat on high seas as well as any man.

In the summer of 1858, when Ida was seventeen, a small pleasure craft crossing the harbor capsized, upsetting four helpless passengers, all men, into the water. From her lighthouse top Ida saw the situation and though the day was a stormy one and the waves beat furiously upon the shore, she launched her boat, sped across the water, and rescued all four.

After that life-saving became Ida's vocation. Once she went out to the aid of three men who had set out after a sheep that had been carried out to sea and had upset in reaching for it in the water. At two different times she rescued soldiers from nearby Fort Adams. In all she saved twenty-two lives.

Ida became the heroine of Newport. On one occasion the Life Saving Benevolent Association of New York present her with $170, on another the soldiers of Fort Adams gathered together $280 and presented it to her with due ceremony. The General Assembly of the state of Rhode Island passed a resolution honoring her. General Grant and other dignitaries at one time participated in a special ceremony of recognition, and she received letters and gifts from all over the world. In 1869 the citizens of Newport presented her with a specially constructed boat called the Rescue. In 1879 by a special act of congress, Ida Lewis was made keeper of the Lime Rock lighthouse.

She held her post for 32 years. When, in 1911, it became known that the heroic woman, then almost seventy, lay dying in the lighthouse which was her home, artillery practice at Fort Adams was suspended, that her last hours might be spent in peace.

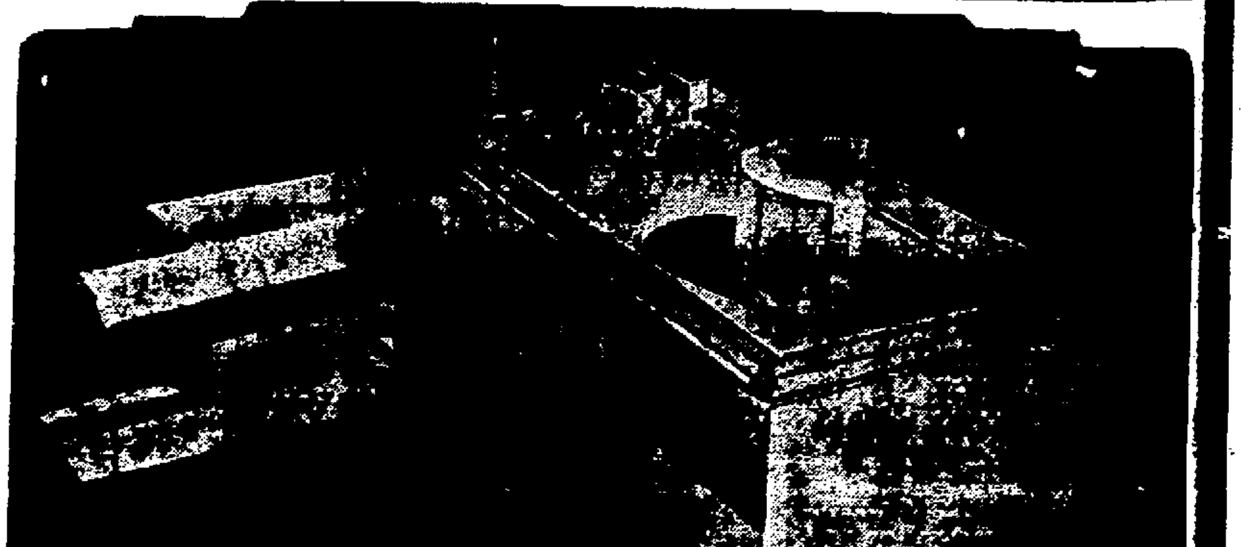
Now They're Using Cotton in Building Houses



IN THE planning of low-cost houses of modern design, the architectural profession has discovered practical advantages in using cotton canvas for the partitions, awnings, walls and roofs. The material is coated with fireproof paint and insulated with aluminum foil. The week-end cottage requires about 600 square yards of material, while another more permanent summer dwelling, a model of which is shown above, has five rooms, deck and garage with about yards of material needed.

i-Y Club Heard Address on Birds

he Boys' Hi-Y Club of Kingston h School held its regular weekly ting at the Y. M. C. A. Wednes- evening and had as its guest aker, Henry F. Dunbar of the h school faculty. The speaker has years been a student of birds and habits and spoke in a most in- ting manner about them. Not y was he adept in describing man's thered friends but he could imi- e to perfection the calls and songs a great many of the local birds. boys were fascinated with his entation and a number of them t the speaker answering questions some time after the meeting had journed.

Other features of last night's meet- were "Tall Stories" by Richard ston and Boyd Miller, also mem- s of the high school faculty, and arks by "Stu" Parks, a past presi- t of Hi-Y, now home for spring ation from Springfield College. ll stories, told by a couple of mem- rs of the club or guests, have been added feature of the Hi-Y meet- s this year and cause considerable erriment among the boys preceding e principal program.

The business meeting which fol- wed the fine chicken dinner served the members of the Ladies Auxil- y of the Y. M. C. A., was opened a devotional program in charge Wallace Buley. The theme of the ripture lesson and short medita- n was a "Courtesy" in keeping th the special attention being ven to good manners in Kingston gh School this week. Kimbol ie, in reporting for the dance com- ittee, announced that plans were ogressing nicely and that the club's nce to be held in the Y. W. C. A. ll on April 18 would have enter- inment features as well as regular ncing. Roger Eastman and Frank rnon were appointed this week's mmittee to help with a recreational gram for the boys at the Indus- al Home.

Next Sunday, the Club's Deputa- n Team will journey to Wallkill to nduct the evening's service in the allkill Reformed Church. The fol- wing Sunday, April 9, the team ill have charge of the evening ser- e in the Church of the Comforter. is city.

By BYRON PRICE
(Chief Of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington.)

WHATEVER else it may mean, the readiness of so many members of congress to vest sweeping farm powers in Secretary Henry A. Wallace represents one of the most remarkable personal tributes ever paid a newcomer in public life.

Six months ago the name of this intensely earnest young man from Iowa was almost unknown in Washington. He had been heard of as a farm editor, of a well known family, who had left the republican fold to help elect Roosevelt.

Now he is nominated as final arbiter of agricultural fortune in a vast scheme of control proposed to give the federal government a power hardly dreamed of before. A good many of those in congress who voted for this arrangement still are rubbing their eyes about it.

As many said on the floor, and many more privately, they fell into line largely because they had faith in Wallace.

Those who had seen him were impressed with his serious, almost evangelical devotion to a new deal and a square deal for the farmer. Those who had not seen him had been hearing much lately about his past performances, and liked what they heard.

The Vital Sentence

The number of senators and representatives who really understood the technical language of the farm bill probably was very small, but they all did understand one sentence of it, and after they had read that they understood also that the rest of the involved phraseology probably wasn't very important. For that sentence said:

"The secretary of agriculture shall have power to provide for reduction in the acreage or reduction in production for market, or both, of any basic agricultural commodity, through agreements with producers, or otherwise."

Personal Tribute

Of course the peculiarities of the times cannot be overlooked in assessing the reasons why the bill rolled up, for instance, that tremendous majority in the house.

The feeling of crisis in the air and the urge of discipline doubtless brought in many votes. Yet when all is said and done, and every discount made, the thing simply could not have happened except for the existence of a very high non-partisan regard for the purposes, the zeal and the judgment of Wallace.

As one house member expressed it privately afterward:

"I don't know what this bill means, except that we are putting agriculture in the hands of one man. I do know that that principle is right and that there are no better hands for the task than those of the present head of the department of agriculture."

The Test's Ahead

The secretary's real test still is ahead of him. He must undertake to do by regulation what successive congresses and Presidents have failed to do by law.

His daily associates know that he realizes, probably above all others, that he is starting on a momentous adventure, along that stony trail of experimentation described by the President himself as "an untrod path."

Whether he reaches his goal is another story. The impressive thing just now, for what it may be worth, is the extraordinary atmosphere of trust and respect in which he sets forth.

Engineer Flags Own Train After Mishap

Elmira, N. Y., March 30 (AP)—The Atlantic Express on the Erie Railroad rolled down to New York today after a strange series of incidents which ended with Engineer Walter Fredericks standing on the track flagging his own train.

The express was running at reduced speed past South Corning last night and sleeping car passengers from Chicago were preparing for bed when the explosion occurred that blew Fredericks out of his cab window and sent Fireman M. S. Delap scurrying into the coal tender for safety.

The engineer came to in a grassy patch beside the tracks, to see the tail lights of his train disappearing in the distance. Only slightly injured, he ran to a farmhouse and telephoned to a dispatcher.

Meanwhile, in the engine of the express—

"Steam, water and live coals were blown out into the cab," Fireman Delap said. "I ran up on the tender and stayed until the steam blast was nearly over.

"When I clamed back into the cab I saw for the first time that Fredericks had disappeared. As quickly as I could I stopped the train."

He found that the train had run more than five miles without its engineer, to a settlement called Big Flats.

In the meantime, Engineer Fredericks was fretting to get away from Corning General Hospital, where he had been taken to have his cuts and bruises dressed. He asked a newspaper man to help him find his train.

Twenty minutes later they drove up to the tracks at Elmira Heights. A headlight was coming. With a lantern Fredericks flagged the train and climbed aboard. It was his own express, with a fresh engine.

Market for Fruits And Vegetables

New York, March 30—(State Department of Agriculture and Markets) —

Florida new crop potatoes advanced in a slightly stronger market. No. 1 Spaulding Rose wholesaled at mainly $1.25 a barrel.

Supplies of old crop potatoes were moderate and the market ruled steady. Upstate round white No. 1 in bulk per 180 lbs. jobbed out at $1.75-$1.80 while Long Island Green Mountain No. 1 brought $2.30-$2.40.

Little activity prevailed in old crop cabbage. Upstate Danish white jobbed out at $17-$18 per ton. A year ago the best white commanded $50-$55.

A slightly better feeling prevailed on the market on fine quality yellow onions. Best western New York No. 1 yellow changed hands at 75 cents per 50 lbs. while finest offerings from middle western states realized 90 cents.

The apple market was steady on attractive quality fruit. Supplies were moderate and the demand was fair. Western New York Baldwins N. Y. U. S. Grade No. 1, 2¾ inch and upward sold at $3.50-$3.75 per barrel and 2½ inch $3-$3.50.

Financial and Commercial

New York, March 30 (AP).—The stock market was still lackadaisical today, but prices were steadier than yesterday.

Scattered selling appeared at times notably in some of the rails but some of the sugar, alcohol and smelting stocks were moderately firm. Traders generally, however were content to mark time.

Union Pacific dipped more than a point, and some of the other carrier issues sagged fractions. Soft spots in the industrial group were Drug, off nearly 2, and National Biscuit, down a point. Pressure against American Telephone was lifted, and that issue rose a fraction. Utilities acted somewhat better, with Public Service of N. J. up a point. Miscellaneous issues rising ½ to 1½ points included American Sugar, Great Western Sugar, American Smelting, U. S. Smelting, National Distillers, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, Commercial Solvents, and Corn Products.

Brokers noted an increased speculative interest in commodities, seemingly reflecting the belief that Washington efforts to stimulate business recovery would concentrate on lifting raw staple prices.

National Distillers again advanced, in response to the Senate's passage of a bill liberalizing medicinal liquor regulations. Some of the firmness of alcohol stocks generally has been attributed to agitation to mix alcohol with gasoline to increase consumption of farm products.

POULTRY

WATCH GOOD LAYER TO PICK BEST EGGS

Shape of Body and Head Is Not Reliable Guide.

Science played a persistent myth of the American barnyard when Department of Agriculture investigators announced that there is no mathematical relationship between the shape of a hen's egg and her potential egg production.

Months of delicate measuring, weighing, counting, tabulating and cross-indexing were required to demonstrate the scientific truth that "neither the shape of a hen's body nor the shape of her head bears any relation to her egg production."

"Apparently," the scientific inquiry concluded, "a hen's ability to lay depends upon egg-laying ancestry."

To gather the information upon which these general conclusions were based, the department's investigators devised a trap nest. Under the general direction of J. P. Quinn, a poultry specialist in the bureau of animal industry, the government test was checked on two widely divergent types of chickens.

"Investigators measured the live birds, the dressed carcasses, and the bones of about 400 trapnested White Leghorn and Rhode Island Red hens," the report says. "They could find no relationship between egg production or egg size and the shape of the hen's body. They conclude that the shape of the body, as indicated by length of keel and the width and depth of the body, have been much overemphasized in culling practices. Similarly, the shape of the head, often regarded as an indicator of laying capacity, was not a safe guide. Head and skull measurements revealed no factor—length, breadth, or depth of skull—associated with high capacity for egg production. The weight of the brains was not a criterion as to the number, total weight, or average weight of the eggs the bird had laid."

The surest way to pick out good producers, the bulletin suggests, is by the empirical method—that is, by watching the suspected good layers and counting their eggs.

Blood Spot in an Egg Does Not Indicate Age

A small blood spot in an egg does not indicate that the egg is stale or bad, says the United States Department of Agriculture, in response to frequent inquiries.

Blood spots are found occasionally in fresh eggs, although this imperfection seldom occurs in the best grades of eggs that are candled and sold on the markets. Eggs from farm flocks are not so likely to contain blood spots as those from commercial flocks that are fed for maximum production.

The seasons when blood spots are most likely to occur are late spring when the hens are laying heavily, and in the fall when the pullets begin to lay.

Poultrymen who desire to remove all questionable eggs from those marketed should candle their entire production and use such eggs at home. Less forcing for egg production and liberal feeding of green feed will tend to reduce the formation of blood spots in eggs.—Scientific American.

Vigorous Fowls for Breeding

Only the most vigorous fowls should be used in the breeding pens. The vigorous bird has a well-curved beak, prominent clear eyes, a relatively deep, broad head, with a bright color in comb and wattles. The back is broad and carries level to the tail. A full breast and well-developed abdomen give the body a rectangular appearance. The legs are squarely placed and stand wide apart at the knees. This description applies to both males and females. The appearance alone may be deceptive, however, and it cannot always be relied upon to measure vigor. The number of chicks that hatch and live to three weeks of age from 100 eggs set is a better measure of the inherent strength of a pair of individuals.—Los Angeles Times.

Poultry Facts

In the 100 departments of vocational agriculture in Wisconsin there are 4,277 students enrolled.

• • •

About 92 per cent of all farms in Wisconsin have chicks, 17 per cent raise geese or ducks, and 8 per cent keep turkeys.

England has a few big things in poultry including a single-unit incubator holding 70,000 eggs and turning out 20,000 chicks a week.

• • •

Egg production is lower this year in Wisconsin. There are 4 per cent fewer hens and nearly 9 per cent fewer eggs per hundred birds.

A white Wyandotte pullet, owned by Miss K. Newman, of Drimadaly, has broken Ireland's egg-laying record by producing 301 eggs in 48 weeks.

From England is announced the registration in the patent office of an electrical device called the "Egg-o-scope," said to be capable of determining the quality of eggs in sealed cartons.

Hurley P.-T. A. Meeting

The Hurley Parent-Teacher Association will hold a study group meeting on Friday evening, March 31, at 7:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. John Brink. All members are requested to be present at this meeting.

SHOKAN

Shokan, March 29—Elmer Christiana of Lackawack was a business caller in the village Wednesday morning. Mr. Christiana is a son-in-law of Mrs. Thomas Sahlbeck of Shokan.

Homer Markle, Jr., well known local painter and decorator, has received his new spring samples of wall paper. Mr. Markle's sample books are on display at the corner store.

Paul James has resumed his logging operations on the mountain after several weeks of inactivity in this line on account of a sick horse.

Several workmen on Wednesday were engaged in sinking the big gasoline tanks which are being installed at the Wendt place along the state road. There was so much water in the hole that the men were obliged to keep a pump in operation while at work on the job.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Crane of the Bushkill section were in Shokan Tuesday. The Cranes have recently returned from Florida where they spent the winter.

George Ricker, the efficient star route mail carrier, sent in his bid for a renewal of his contract on Tuesday. It is thought that the contract for the Kingston-Margaretville route will be awarded within the next three weeks.

On March 30, 1909, the Board of Water Supply of the city of New York adopted resolutions relative to the burying grounds of the Ashokan reservoir section. It was decided that the removal of bodies and tombstones from lands acquired under Chapter 724 of the Laws of 1905 should be proceeded with, and that the sum of $15 be allowed and paid to the friend or relative of any deceased person under whose supervision a body was removed; also that three dollars be paid for the removal and resetting of the ordinary head and foot stones. It was stipulated that bodies whose removal was not made or arranged for before November 1, 1910, should be relocated in a cemetery selected by the board. There were 32 cemeteries taken, and 2,800 bodies removed, under the above resolutions.

Arthur Vandervent of Mt. Vernon motored to Shokan Saturday and paid a visit to the Vanderbent summer home on the mountain road.

Mrs. May Giles, who with her brother, William Personeus, is spending the winter with their sister, Mrs. Lounsberry, at Krippebush, called on some of her Shokan friends here Tuesday.

The first large flock of robins arrived in town on Wednesday. One farmer reports that about 50 of the birds alighted in a field near his house shortly after breakfast time and a number of them came close to the farm house in search of food.

John Moore, who for the past year and a half has conducted the Orchard Lunch refreshment stand and filling station in the west end of the village, has added a line of groceries to his stock of merchandise.

Mrs. Oscar Ganter and son, Emmett, returned Tuesday from an automobile trip to New York city and Mt. Vernon. While in the big city Mr. Ganter called at the Title and Trust Company, where he was formerly employed, and was told that with the return of beer they expected to take on about 60 young men at a reduction in the old wage scale. Emmett reports the city folks all keyed up over the prospects for good beer and says that elaborate preparations are being made for dispensing legal brew at the crack of the opening gun.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Reformed Church will hold its April business meeting at the home of Mrs. William J. Green in Ashokan next Wednesday.

Several married couples in the west end of the village have formed a card club which they have named the "Shokan Social Eight" and are enjoying many pleasant evenings at one another's homes. These congenial folks plan to have a "blow-out" at one of the classy Kingston hostelries in the near future. The members of this social club are as follows: Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Giacone, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sahlbeck, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Grossman and Mr. and Mrs. Grant DeSilva.

On March 31, 1875, the town board of Olive met and appointed Jacob Bishop an assessor and Caleb VanVelson an overseer of the poor. Mr. Bishop was a farmer owning 65 acres of land near the old village of Olive, and Mrs. VanVelson was a carpenter and farmer residing in the same section.

PACKARD ANNOUNCES NEW FORMAL SEDAN.

The Packard Motor Car Company has announced a new body type in what it calls a Formal Sedan. The new car fills the gap between a sedan and limousine. It can be either an owner or chauffeur driven car at will. A few turns of an easily operated handle in the rear compartment completes the change from one to the other. This handle raises a wide glass partition from a cleverly concealed pocket in the back of the front seat when a limousine, or chauffeur driven car, is desired. The glass slides in channels in the door pillar posts and fits snugly against the upholstering cloth of the ceiling.

When a sedan, or owner driven car, is wanted the glass partition lowers out of sight. Practically nothing is left to indicate that the car is any different than a normal sedan. Opera type occasional seats, one side-facing and the other facing the rear, are provided in the passenger compartment. The roof and rear quarters of the car are leather covered. The new body is mounted on the Packard Eight, Super Eight and Twelve chassis.

Local Death Record

John Hasenflue of Lomontville died on Thursday. His remains are reposing at the Bruck Funeral Home, 442 Broadway. Funeral arrangements have not been announced. Surviving him is his wife, Delilah De Graff Hasenflue.

Martin Platt died at his home on the Rosendale road in the town of Ulster Wednesday. Surviving are his wife, Anna Kruger Platt, and one son, Albert Platt. Funeral private from the parlors of Frank J. McCardle, Rosendale. Interment in Montrepose cemetery, Kingston.

William, Jr., infant son of William and Katherine Sherlock Sapp, died this morning after a very brief illness. The funeral will be held from the late home, 56 East Pierpont streeet, Saturday morning at 9 o'clock. Interment will be in the family plot in Mt. Calvary Cemetery.

Emily May, infant daughter of John A. and Elsie Binch Stahl, died at the family home, 277 Flatbush avenue, after a brief illness. Surviving besides the parents are two sisters, Jeanne M. and Mary E., and three brothers, John R., Harry E. and Bernard B. Friends wishing to call may do so this evening from 7 to 9 o'clock. Funeral services and interment will be private Friday at the convenience of the family.

Funeral services for Mrs. Babbette Dauner, who died Sunday at her home, were held Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The Rev. W. H. Pretzsch, pastor of Trinity Lutheran Church and a very close friend of Mrs. Dauner, conducted the services impressively. There was a profusion of floral offerings and a large delegation of friends were in attendance at the services. The interment was in Montrepose cemetery, with members of the family acting as bearers.

Larry Smith, of 55 Green street, who had been a section laborer on the former Ulster & Delaware Railroad, died at the Kingston Hospital this morning. Funeral from the chapel of A. Carr & Son, 1 Pearl street, Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment in Fair View cemetery, Stone Ridge. Surviving are his wife, who was Nellie M. Germond; one stepdaughter, Chloe Vermilya; two brothers, Matthew Smith of Arkville and John Smith of Kripplebush; also several nieces and nephews.

Mrs. Mary Frances Tubbs, widow of John Tubbs, died in her home in Gardiner on Monday evening after a short illness, aged 57 years. She is survived by two sons, John and David Tubbs, of Gardiner; two brothers, Isaac William and Jacob William of Gardiner, and four sisters, Mrs. Ida Reynolds of Wallkill; Rita Bernard of New Paltz; Mrs. Joseph P. Williams of Gardiner, and Mrs. Charlotta Coy of Modena. Funeral services were held today in the Gardiner Reformed Church at 10:30 a. m. Interment was in Modena Cemetery.

The funeral of Louis J. Ahrens was held from the home of his sister, Mrs. Christian Seitz, 257 W. Chestnut street, Tuesday afternoon and was very largely attended by his many relatives, friends and neighbors, who came to pay their last respects to his memory. There was a profusion of beautiful floral tributes, testifying to the high esteem in which he was held in this community. The services were in charge of the Rev. O. E. Brandorff, pastor of the Redeemer Lutheran Church. The bearers were members of the family and the interment was in the family plot in Montrepose cemetery.

Ethel C. Freer Worssam, wife of H. Herbert Worssam, died in Brunswick Hospital at Amityville, Long Island, Tuesday morning, March 28, following an operation for appendicitis. Mrs. Worssam was the only daughter of Asher and the late Dinah Conners Freer of New Paltz. She graduated from New Paltz Normal in 1929, was a member of the Clionian Fraternity and taught in Babylon, Long Island. She was married to Mr. Worssam of Babylon Thanksgiving day, 1931. Funeral services were conducted from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Asher Freer this afternoon at 3 o'clock by the Rev. G. R. Wallschleger, minister of the Dutch Reformed Church. Interment in New Paltz Rural cemetery under the direction of Lesson D. DuBois.

Funeral services for Mrs. Hattie Thompson, the wife of the Rev. Harry Thompson, a retired Methodist minister, were held on Saturday afternoon, March 25, 1933, at 2:30 o'clock from her late home in West Hurley. The services were in charge of the Rev. Clarence C. Winchell, pastor of the West Hurley M. E. Church. He was assisted by the Rev. Fred Hulse, who read the scriptures, and the Revs. Emmett Shew and W. Stanley Risch, who offered the prayers. There were several beautiful floral pieces showing the high esteem in which Mrs. Thompson's many friends held her. The little home was filled with friends and former parishioners, several coming from Haines Falls, the Rev. Thompson's last charge before retiring. Interment was in the Woodstock cemetery.

Shokan, March 30.—John D. Groves, resident maintenance engineer for the Department of Water Supply, who died in Kingston Hospital early Tuesday morning following an operation for appendicitis, had been connected with the reservoir force here since the beginning of work on the Ashokan water supply system. Last summer Mr. Groves with his family removed from Kingston to Brown Station, occupying the Zimmerman house in the city employes' colony near the aerator park. Following his removal Mr. Groves was in active charge of maintenance operations here, assuming many of the duties of the late Llewyn T. Lewis whose death took place several weeks previously. Mr. Groves was an indefatigable worker and eminently fair in his dealings with the large force of city employes in this section. He is survived by his wife and five children, who have the sympathy of the people of the Ashokan country in their sudden bereavement.

To Honor Mother of President.

Collegeville, Pa., March 30 (AP).—Announcement was made today that Mrs. Sarah Delano Roosevelt, mother of President Roosevelt, will be the guest of honor of the Huguenot Society of Pennsylvania at its annual meeting at Ursinus College, May 3. The Huguenot cross will be conferred on her by the head of the society, Dr. George L. Omwake, president of Ursinus College.

In a great white hare drive on the estate of Earl Cawdor, near Nairn, Scotland, 1,000 hares were killed and distributed to unemployed.

The combined world crops of corn, oats and barley in 1932 exceeded 1931 production by about 13 per cent.

Latest News from The Baseball Front

Fort Myers, Fla., March 30 (AP).—Walter Beck, big hurler from Memphis, seems to have won himself a place on the Brooklyn Dodgers' mound staff without any argument. In 15 innings of exhibition game pitching, seven of them against the Athletics, Beck has allowed only two unearned runs. Yesterday he blanked the A's with three hits in four innings.

Yanks Satisfied.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 30 (AP).—The New York Yankees, now en route home by the usual roundabout "barnstorming route" are well satisfied with their training season here. They did not lose a day of practice during their four weeks of pre-season drill through bad weather and when they left only one player was not in good condition. Johnny Allen, who recently suffered an influenza attack, remained at his home here. He will rejoin the club at Louisville next week.

Suits Indications.

Houston, Tex., March 30 (AP).—The New York Giants haven't made any cuts in their rookie roster as yet but some indications of where the axe may land were seen when new uniforms were given out yesterday. Lieber, Peel, James, Koenecke, Salveson and Smith were among those who were given the new garb while Joe Martin, Reggie Mapp, Mike Hale, Art McLarney and Harry Danning were left to get along with their old uniforms.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN J. GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

The "son of the prairies," as Glenn Cunningham is described by his former college coach, Brutus Hamilton, owes much of his fame as America's greatest miler to the ruggedness of his background.

"He has added to the traditional resourcefulness and endurance of his pioneer forebears a courage seldom equalled," writes Hamilton. "The Kansas prairie is no place for a crybaby. There's work to be done and a boy is soon initiated into it. Cows to milk, wheat to harvest, hay to put up, wood to chop and chores to do. It's a hard life, but a wholesome one and furnishes an excellent background for future athletic achievement.

"While he is by no means a cripple, as some writers have observed (due to the fact he was badly burned about the legs at the age of eight) he does not have normal circulation in the leg muscles or normal muscular protection over the shin bones. This necessitates a program of training quite different from that of the average boy. He does much long walking, many exercises of the bicycling type, and confines himself to very little running on the track.

"He seems to be able to run more this winter and that, combined with a tonsillectomy he underwent last September, will probably make him considerably faster when warm summer days come around."

Bulldog and Greyhound

Cunningham did quite enough running on the boards and did it rapidly enough to discourage just about all his outstanding rivals, especially long-legged Gene Venzke, the Pennsylvania freshman.

If he gets any faster, as Hamilton suggests, he will be by all odds the best American bet to wipe out the world outdoor record of 4:09 1-5, which now stands in the books to the credit of Jules Ladoumegue of France, now banished from amateur competition along with the runner whose mark he displaced, Paavo Nurmi.

Venzke, of course, cannot be counted out of this picture. No boy who has done 4:10 for the mile can be overlooked in any discussion of this kind. Cunningham not only has demonstrated he has a superior finishing "kick", however, but he also seems a more rugged, determined type. Glenn resembles more the bulldog in running spirit, Gene the grayhound.

Give Them a Chance

From a writer whose name we obviously cannot disclose comes this salient comment:

"There are hundreds of embryo Glenn Cunninghams in this country today who are denied the right to get an education because of the famous Bulletin No. 23 of the Carnegie Foundation.

"I have helped hundreds of young men get into college, just as some one has helped Cunningham get into Kansas. I contend that because a boy is a good athlete why should it be held against him if he desires to use it in order to get an education?

"One of the finest fellows who lives received his college education and furthered it by entering a medical school. Today he is the head of one of the finest hospitals in the East. He has a national reputation. The world might have missed this man's skillful ability had not some thoughtful man helped him along."

Repealers Book Hebrew Team And St. Mary's Big Five

The Hebrew-Americans, anxious since the beginning of the season to meet the Morgan Repealers, get their chance Friday night at White Eagle Hall when the big Green and White team closes its season in a double-header attraction. St. Mary's Big Five is the other team to oppose the Opponents of the 18th Amendment in the dual bill which is expected to draw a capacity house.

St. Mary's Counselors, victors over the Big Five and avoided by the Hebrews all season, they say, are much put out over their elimination from the list of teams which Manager Dick Dulin scanned in picking opponents for his Repealers in their finale. The Counselors' manager, Bill Jordan, expressed himself as of the opinion that the Scout directors would give the Repealers a stronger run than either the Hebrews or Big Five.

Regardless of Jordan's opinion many fans agree with the choice made by Dulin and expect fast games Friday with the Morgans being pressed every minute despite the fact they look stronger on paper and are the favorites to win.

Stars And Aces In "Rubber" Contest

The Kingston Stars, formerly Kingston High School varsity, and the Aces of Port Ewen play there tonight in Pythian Hall in the third and "rubber" game to decide the winner of the series which is now divided, each club having won one contest.

Opposing lineups will be: Stars—Rhymer and Zeeh, forwards; Evory, center; Debrosky and DeVeau, guards. Aces—Teetsell and Galbraith, forwards; Myers, center; Schreiber and Mellow, guards.

There will be a preliminary.

Three Games At White Eagle Hall

Manager Tessio's Z. N. P. quintet, which lost to the Knights of Columbus, 27-21, in the preliminary at B. W. S. Hall, High Falls, Wednesday, will try to get back on the winning road tonight at White Eagle Hall, Delaware avenue, against the P. N. A. of Poughkeepsie, a team over which it holds a one-point victory.

Starting time of the game is 9 o'clock. There will be two preliminaries, one at 7 o'clock between the Z. N. P. Juniors and Majestics and the other at 8 between St. Mary's Girls and the Fullers.

WRESTLING LAST NIGHT

Bruck's Ridgers Take Close Game From Ducklings

Although they were favored to take over the Long Island Ducklings by experts who pictured them romping to a lopsided victory, shooting baskets at will, Pete Bruck's All Stars, regarded as the semi-pro champions of Ulster county, had to extend themselves to the limit, and then some at B. W. S. Hall Wednesday to defeat the Metropolitan lassies who proved the weaker sex can go places and do things on the basketball court against male opponents.

Final score of the tilt was 33-29 in favor of the Bruckmen, who captured the duke by a strong rally in the closing quarter during which the lead see-sawed several times as the mixed quintets raised plenty of smoke in their battle for the honors.

Leading the scoring attack for Stone Ridge was Norm Niles with 18 points and Herb Van Deusen with 8. Hattie Michaels, shooting star of the Ducklings, came through with the largest number of markers as usual, gleaning 14 for the girls. M. E. Henggeler was next with 12.

Mabel Wood and Violet Hale, Rockne stars, borrowed for the occasion to play with his All Stars greatly satisfied Manager Pete Bruck, who estimated their efforts very highly considering their appearance was the first with the Stone Ridge masculine team and their opponents one of the best, if not the best, girls' quintets in the state of New York.

The box score:

Bowlers Feast At "Y" Tonight

The annual banquet of the Mercantile Bowling League will be held at the Y. M. C. A. tonight, starting at 6:30 o'clock, when a steak supper will be served to the maple spillers of the circuit and their friends by members of the "Y" Auxiliary under the direction of Mrs. G. H. DuBois, president, and Mrs. W. A. Longyear, chairman. Besides the supper there will be entertainment, John Spalt at the piano.

Guest speakers will be Palmer Canfield, former mayor of Kingston, Clarence S. Rowland, president of the Y. M. C. A. and Clarence S. Schoonmaker, secretary.

Prizes won during league competition will be awarded to the experts, the championship trophy going to the Silk Mills of the American Division.

Previous to the banquet there will be an executive meeting at 6:15 when officers will be elected for the ensuing year.

Officers of the league for the past season were Kenneth Williams, president; William Mellert, vice president; Kenneth Van Etten, secretary; Ernest LeFevre, treasurer; Carlton N. Foster, managing director.

Keener Opposition No Threat to Yanks, American Favorites

By Alan Gould
(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

Despite the fact they face much stronger opposition all along the American League line this year, especially from Washington, the New York Yankees still have large and abundant quantities of the stuff that makes them the outstanding club in baseball.

Salaries of the baseball champions underwent drastic reductions, including a slice off Babe Ruth's pay checks big enough to pay the year's stipend of all but a half dozen other stars, but the New Yorkers still are the most expensive cast in either major league.

Johnny Allen, their freshman pitching sensation of 1932, has not rounded into form and seems unlikely to duplicate his feat of winning 17 games, but the wealth of available pitching talent includes a big fellow who may do even better, Don Brennan, up from the Newark "farm" and all ready for a regular job.

Ruth's Understudies

The Babe himself, no longer is a greyhound on the defense, and Manager Joe McCarthy may not have decided yet who will start the season at shortstop, but consider the embarrassment of the Yankee pilot in these circumstances. He has two of the greatest young outfielders anywhere in sight, Sam Byrd and Fred Walker, both straining at the leash if Ruth shows the least sign of needing an understudy. He has three shortstops, any one of whom would be welcomed on most other big league clubs, and the task of deciding whether Bill Weber has come along fast enough this spring to displace Frankie Crosetti or Lyn Lary, 1932 alternates.

Pennant Favorites

In this dreadful predicament, it is small wonder that the Yankees are 2 to 1 favorites to win the pennant again, even though Washington is conceding nothing and the other clubs are hoping mostly for the "breaks".

In the two vital elements of baseball supremacy, power and pitching, the Yankees have nothing to worry about. Now that Connie Mack has broken up the Simmons-Foxx combination on the Athletics, there is no two-ply powerhouse anywhere to compare with Ruth and Gehrig. Combs, Sewell, Lazzeri, Dickey and Chapman all carry enough wallop to originate or join typical Yankee slugfests. No matter who plays shortstop and if Red Ruffing is pitching, there is no soft spot anywhere in the batting order.

The Hurling Staff.

There isn't much chance for a pitching recruit who didn't have enough stuff to post 20 victories or more in minor league company. Jimmy Deshong only won 19 for Sacramento in the Pacific Coast League, but McCarthy probably will overlook this and keep the young right hander, who once tried out with the Athletics. Don Brennan captured 26 games for Newark and Russell Van Atta, southpaw addition from St. Paul, won 23 in the American Association, thereby qualifying.

The starting staff again will be built around Ruffing, the Nokomis (Ill.) right hander, and Vernon (Lefty) Gomez, the accomplished southpaw. Together they won 42 games last year and should come close to that figure again. George Pipgras and Johnny Allen may have to hustle to keep their regular jobs, with Brennan, Van Atta, Deshong, Big Walter Brown and Danny MacFayden anxious for steady employment. Herb Pennock and Wiley Moore are past masters at the art of mopping up. Charley Devens, Harvard alumnus, was originally ticketed for a season in Newark but he has developed so fast that McCarthy may keep him with the varsity.

Too Many Shortstops

Aside from the problem of trimming his pitching staff, the manager's chief worries concern which two of his shortstop trio to keep. Right now it looks as though Crosetti will be sent to Newark, leaving Werber and Lary to fight it out. McCarthy, because of the optional limits, also may be obliged to let Walker go back to Newark for another season and keep Dusty Cooke for outfield reserve duty.

Otherwise there is no question about the lineup, including Bill Dickey behind the bat, barring accidents or suspension. Gehrig, Lazzeri and Sewell are set at the infield posts, as are Combs and Chapman in the outfield.

Says Congress May End State Banks

Washington, March 30 (AP).—The opinion that Congress has power to do away with state bank systems and to concentrate the nation's banking business under Federal control has been put forward by Walter Wyatt, chief counsel for the Federal Reserve Board.

The opinion was published in the Board's monthly bulletin yesterday and came to hand at a time considered most significant in view of the moves for banking reform advanced as a result of the recent crisis.

Many members of Congress are urging a unified national banking system, many of them having introduced legislation to that end.

Wyatt's opinion was prepared last December for the Senate banking committee. Senator Glass (D., Va.) had requested it on the strength of testimony by Eugene Meyer, governor of the reserve board, that competition between reserve member banks and non-member state banks had been seriously hampering American banking.

Citing supreme court opinions in support, Wyatt placed strongest stress on the point that Congress, having created the national and Federal Reserve banking systems, has authority to provide them with safeguards by eliminating competition from state banks.

The Senate banking committee will consider new banking laws soon. President Roosevelt is prepared to advance legislation remedying weaknesses as he sees them.

NEW LOAN SERVICE FOR KINGSTON AND VICINITY

The Personal Finance Company of New York has opened offices at 319 Wall street, to extend financial credit to those who need to borrow money for necessities, but who have no banking connections on which they can depend for assistance. The staff is prepared to complete all the necessary details in connection with a loan, within twenty-four hours. Loans are made in amounts of $300 and less. Only lawful interest is charged and that is calculated strictly upon the unpaid monthly balance.

In many cases, families find themselves in financial difficulties as a result of their having failed to budget their household expenses with their income. Often such families do not require financial assistance at all, but merely financial guidance and advice on how to operate the household budget. The new company offers expert financial advice without any charge whatever, and even provides a most useful 32-page household expense book which is given free to all who call at the office or write for it.

Local K. of C. Will Receive Communion

The annual communion breakfast of Kingston Council, No. 275, Knights of Columbus, will be held in the Governor Clinton Hotel on Sunday, April 2. The local Knights have been fortunate in securing as the main speaker for the occasion, the Hon. John E. Mack, nationally famous attorney and jurist of Poughkeepsie, and the nominator of Franklin D. Roosevelt for both the governorship of New York state and the presidency of the United States. Other speakers who will address the assemblage are the Rev. Charles Reilly, C. Ss. R., J. U. D., of Mt. St. Alphonsus, and the Rev. Henry E. Herdegen, assistant at St. Peter's Church and chaplain of the local council. Grand Knight Matthew V. Cahill will act as toastmaster.

Prior to the breakfast the members of the local council will receive holy communion in a body at the eight o'clock Mass in St. Joseph's Church. The local council has always made its most representative showing at the annual communion and it is expected that there will be a number of the members, who will attend communion, even though they find it impossible to attend the breakfast at the Governor Clinton Hotel.

All reservations from members for the communion breakfast must be in the hands of James R. Higley, lecturer of the local council, by Friday, March 31, at the latest, in order that suitable arrangements may be made.

Birds and Fowl

The word fowl was originally applied to all birds; later to all large or edible ones; and now to poultry, or especially the domestic cock and hen, and often to their wild relatives.

Rochester to Get Milk by Protection

Rochester, N. Y., March 30 (AP).—The Dairymen's League Association was preparing today to bring milk into Rochester under armed guard, if necessary, as a result of the strike among independent producers who yesterday dumped thousands of gallons of milk into roadside ditches.

With dealers rapidly exhausting their available milk reserves, word that armed protection would be sought came from Howard M. Clapathon, divisional head of the Dairymen's League organization.

"There is plenty of milk around Rochester available for distribution and it will be brought in under armed guard if necessary," he said.

The strike, most serious outbreak since New York milk farmers became aroused over excessively low prices several months ago, followed a meeting of 1,000 independent producers in the New York Milk Producer's Association Tuesday. They contended they have been getting only slightly more than a cent a quart.

Masked men were in the groups which stopped milk trucks and dumped their loads in more than 20 instances yesterday.

CATSKILL TAXPAYERS WIN; SUNDAY MOVIES APPROVED

The Citizens' Protection group of the Catskill Taxpayers' Association wrested control of the Catskill village board of trustees from the Republicans in the annual charter election on Tuesday, when Harold N. Warden defeated Sisto Fontanella, Republican, 1,129 to 851. A proposition to permit the showing of Sunday movies won by a majority of 821.

Six New Houses Are Under Construction

So far this year plans for six new houses have been filed with Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy and the houses are now under construction. One will be erected on Van Gaasbeek street, one on Roosevelt avenue, one on Florence street, one on Clarendon avenue, one on 1[illegible] avenue and another on Fairmont avenue.

Now is said to be a good time to build by those contemplating erecting new homes for both labor and material are lower than they have been in some time.

SUGARING-OFF GETTING ATTENTION AT OUR SCHOOL

These are sap days at Our School at Stone Ridge, where syrup-making is for the moment the thrilling part of the year's curriculum. It is always a banner day yearly when the trees are tapped and the job is on. Recess hours are given over to carrying in the brimful buckets of apparent water—which, when pooled in a mammoth pot over the flame, miraculously take on the eventual color and flavor of maple syrup.

If the sap-gatherers prove industrious enough a pancake party will be the order of the day to celebrate the end of the sugaring-off season.

One good way to cure "ill" is to put a "W" in front of it.

Friend—What caused the explosion at your house?
Man—Powder on my coat sleeve.

Some men, who don't extend themselves very much to get along, are willing to work themselves almost to death to have some fun.

The mud thrower never has clean hands.

Reporter—I've got a perfect story.
Managing Editor—Did the man bite the dog?
Reporter—No, a bull threw a congressman.

Only the brave deserve the fair, but only the rich can support them.

Prof—What three parts is womankind divided into?
Student—The intelligent, the beautiful and the majority.

Once they crossed the street to dodge the man from whom they had borrowed. Now they cross the street to soak him for another five.

Friend—What did you take as a remedy for your insomnia?
Man—A glass of wine at regular intervals.
Friend—Does that make you sleep?
Man—No, but it makes me content to stay awake.

Then there was the varnish manufacturer who sent his daughter to a finishing school to acquire a little polish.

A philosopher has said truly that "gossip" is always a personal confession either of malice or imbecility and persons should not only shun it, but by the most thorough culture relieve themselves from all temptation to it. It is a low, frivolous and too often a dirty business.

Good Business Rules. . . . A man who has several employes under him has posted up a typewritten sheet where they may all see it. It bears the above caption and the following rules:

1. Don't lie. It wastes my time and yours. I'm sure to catch you in the end, and that's the wrong end.
2. Watch your work, not the clock. A long day's work makes a long day short, and a short day's work makes my face long.
3. Give me more than I expect and I'll pay you more than you expect. I can afford to increase your pay if you increase my profits.
4. You owe so much to yourself that you can't afford to owe anybody else. Keep out of debt or keep out of my place of business.
5. Dishonesty is never an accident. Good men, like good women, can't see temptation when they see it.
6. Mind your own business and in time you'll have a business of your own to mind.
7. Don't do anything here which hurts your self-respect. The employe who is willing to steal for me is capable of stealing from me.
8. It is none of my business what you do at night. But if dissipation affects what you do the next day, and you do half as much as I expect you'll last as long as you hoped.
9. Don't tell me what I'd like to hear but what I ought to hear. I don't want a valet to my vanity, but I need one for my dollars.
10. Don't kick if I kick. If you're worth while correcting you're worth while keeping. I don't waste time cutting specks out of rotton apples.

Flapper (to her boy friend)—John, you're awfully slow.
Boy Friend—I'm afraid I don't grasp you.
Flapper—That's just it.

How I Broke Into The Movies

Copyright by Hal C. Herman

By NORMA SHEARER

NOW that I look back upon it, I guess it was just a dogged determination that got me my first chance in motion pictures.

I often think how strange it seems to me now, in the light of everything I know about the industry, for my sister and me to have set out from our home in Canada to invade the picture business. We did not know a soul in New York, we had no pull and no friends in the industry. In fact, we knew nothing of the inner-workings of a booking office until after we had been in New York for several weeks and had made the rounds of the studios again and again.

On one of our pilgrimages we discovered a kindly soul who told us that we should get an agent and gave us the address of a good booker.

Athole, my sister, and I were filled with new hope and we gleefully bounded into that drab office to be met by a sad-eyed young man seated at a littered desk. He asked us what we wanted, with the air of one who already knew our answer and feared the worst.

We told him emphatically that we wanted to go into the movies. He looked at us pitifully. "Oh, must you go into the movies?" he asked. Our ardor dampened not one whit, we explained that we really must. He gave us a long talk, begging us to turn back, but we were not to be turned and more to get rid of us than anything else he sent us to a studio where twelve girls were needed for a few days' work in a college comedy.

Norma Shearer.

Thinking that the jobs were set for us we reported at the studio the next day to find out that there were fifty girls waiting. Out of these twelve were to be chosen.

The assistant director came out of his office and began looking us over. He chose eleven girls and I was not among them. I coughed very loudly and shuffled my feet. The sound attracted his ear and his eye followed. I had brought myself to his notice and he said, "You'll do. The rest are not needed. The twelve of you report for work tomorrow morning."

My sister was not chosen, but I went back later in the afternoon and we persuaded him that thirteen girls would be better than twelve, that thirteen was really a lucky number and he consented to let Athole work, too.

And that is how I happened to do my first day's work. But breaking into the movies is not like walking into a room, for it's easier to get in than stay in. Weeks passed and no work came, but that one day's work gave us at least the right to say that we had picture experience and we at last got other days' extra work.

Athole dropped out of the game to get married and I went the rest of the way alone.

Extra work led to bits, bits to small parts and small parts to larger ones. By the time I was playing parts I was noticed on the coast and got a contract with the old Mayer studios. When the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer merger was effected my contract was carried over, and I have been with this company ever since.

Among my recent pictures are "Smiling Through," with Frederic March and Leslie Howard and "Strange Interlude" with Clark Gable, Ralph Morgan and Maureen O'Sullivan.

Actor's Favorite Dream

Recreating some of history's most dramatically interesting characters is one of George Arliss' favorite dreams. One of the men the English actor would like to bring to life on the stage or screen is Samuel Pepys, author of the celebrated diary. Another is Cagliostro, famous Eighteenth-century charlatan. A third is the marquis of Queensberry, known about London toward the end of the Eighteenth century as "Old Q." He was not the sponsor of the boxing rules which bear his name—they were drawn up under the auspices of a later marquis—but he was a famous sportsman of his time and a notorious spendthrift.

Arliss a "Smacker"

As a kisser George Arliss is known, among studio sound experts, as a "smacker." His screen kisses make up in sound what they may lack in fervor. Mr. Arliss is apt to be a little perfunctory about kissing before the camera. He worries about it. He cuts out all the kisses he can while editing a script. Those that he leaves in are the kisses that it seems impossible to avoid in telling the story.

Maybe Three

The young lady whose mother suggested a "staid, sensible, middle-aged man for you, dear, as husband—a man of about fifty let us say," improved upon the suggestion with, "I'd much prefer two—twenty-five years old each."

The Fable of the Unflinching Heroine

By GEORGE ADE

© Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.

ONCE there was a Good Woman who, next to Mary Queen of Scots, probably suffered more than any other Prominent Lady of whom we have Record. It will be recalled that Mary started out as a proud Monarch, and finished up as a Martyr, while Mrs. Wambo started out as a Democratic Fixture and finished up as a Gazelle. The unfortunate Queen of Scots had her head cut off. Mrs. Wambo did not go quite that far, but she underwent a Major Operation, which seemed just as important, and which was preceded by as much Suspense, Doubt and Trepidation as that which racked the Royal Prisoner.

Mrs. Wambo, before she got into the Jam, had been married so many Years that she had concealed all the Records and changed the Subject when some careless Friend began to dig up Dates. She owned up to remembering the Spanish-American War, but the Details were all blurred, because she was so young at the Time.

Whatever may have been her Vintage, she had a holy Horror of looking old, or feeling old, or acting as if on the Retired List. She referred to the other Bridgers as "Girls" and would warn any Bachelor, on the slightest Provocation, that her Husband was Jealous.

She had a Pair of Scales in her Bath Room and had tried a Facial Mask and six or seven Years ago had learned to walk loose and slouchy, like a Leading Lady in a $3 show. Also she wore a one-piece Contraption which concealed her Knee Caps unless she had to sit in a Steamer Chair.

Exit for the Seven Sutherland Sisters.

She had a perfectly laudable Ambition to keep on looking an Ingenue until they chopped her down. When she got red in the face after dancing continuously for about forty Minutes, she kidded herself that the High Color was the Flush of Girlhood instead of a warning against Apoplexy.

She wore Beads and took a swing at a Golf Ball once in a while and used to sit out in the Evening and sing with the College Boys before the Ukulele was pushed aside by the Saxophone and Cross-Word Puzzle.

From this Preamble it will be evident that her name should have been Mrs. Ponce de Leon. If there was any Fountain of Youth, she wanted to hunt it up and dive in, headfirst.

It happened that one morning Mrs. Wambo awoke and discovered that the Seven Sutherland Sisters had become a Joke. It may be remembered that these Girls had Tresses which swept the Ground and were copious all the way down. When all of the seven were bunched, the View from behind was like that of Niagara Falls.

Mrs. Wambo recalled that, in her Seminary Days, it was the longing of every Sub-Deb to be a Sutherland, so that when the Mop was let down it would reach to the Ankles. In fact, it seemed that Long Hair had been the Rage from the Days of Eve, Cleopatra and Lady Godiva. The last named, for instance, certainly would have caught cold if the Modern Style had been in Vogue in Coventry in the 11th Century.

Imagine the Shock which came to Mrs. Wambo when she learned that the Flappers, instead of wearing it down to the Ankles, had decided to wear it only as far as the first Cervical Vertebra. Some modern Joan of Arc, residing in Paris, had taken a Tip from the Dutch Kids and Buster Brown and had amputated the whole Works just below the Ears. It seemed that within 24 hours all the Cuties in the world were throbbing with Excitement and wondering if they would dare to follow Suit.

The Situation Looks Grave.

The answer was not long delayed. All of the Young Ones fell for the Fad. Within a short time the Village Barber Shop ceased to be the Place at which the local Bootlegger studied the Pictures in the Police Gazette. It became a Salon—the Social Center of the Community, congested, for Hours at a time, with the very Pick and Flower of young Womanhood. Prominent Citizens who did not know how to shave themselves began to resemble Ernest Torrence, all bushed up for a Western.

Hairpins and Side Combs suddenly became a Drug on the Market but all the Factories making Toilet Soap began to work Night Shifts.

When the new Craze began to sweep the Woodlands and Prairies, Mrs. Wambo spoke right up and said it was Terrible. She pulled the Old One about a Woman's Chief Glory being her Hair and she couldn't imagine what some of the Young Girls were thinking of when they sacrificed a Top-Knot on which they had been working for Years.

Mrs. Wambo stuck to her Waves and Frizzes and the artificial Stuffing and any suggestion that some day she might join the great Sisterhood of Bobs would have given her the Hibby-Jibbies. Besides, she and the other young Matrons who toiled at the Card Tables every day predicted that the whole Thing was just a temporary Craze and some of those who had fallen would be in an awful Hole when the Styles shifted back and they tried to wear it long again.

As Month after Month passed by and the number of Victims increased and Rumor had it that Elsie Janis, Carrie Chapman Catt, Elsie Ferguson, Ethel Barrymore, Bebe Daniels, Queen Mary, Glenna Collett and Galli-Curci had succumbed, the situation began to look serious. It seemed that a good many Girls who were no longer Kittens and who in the Old Days would have been knitting instead of Jazz-Jumping, had been clipped and were shamelessly exhibiting their Necks for the first time.

Signs of Wobbling.

Mr. Wambo began to notice that the Missus, instead of saying that any Woman beyond 30 who got shingled was a Hussy, began to stall and ask Questions. She wanted to know of him if he thought it was Dignified of a Woman who had a Daughter in Smith College to trim herself up like a Soubrette and try to step out when she should have no ambition except to create a Home Atmosphere for her Husband and Children. Mr. Wambo was twice foxy and said he thought that the Modern Woman had a Right to do Anything which would not be stopped by the Police. He had read the Signs and seen the Handwriting on the Wall. He knew that Friend Wife was getting ready to Fall and, when the Time came, she wanted to be pushed and make out that she had been talked into it.

She showed him in the paper where Mrs. Pillsbury of Rockhill, Pa., had been Bobbed at the age of eighty-two and said it made her look and feel Forty Years Younger and she wanted to know if he didn't think it was ridiculous but he said that if Mrs. Pillsbury was satisfied, he thought it was Great.

Then there came a Day when she pulled a False Giggle and said that Lib and Gert were both after her to go to a Place in the Union Central Building where there was a man who had learned it in New York and who could advise one as to which Style would be most becoming. She had no Intention of going but it was a Fact that a great many Women ever so much older than She had been done over and you'd be surprised what a Change it made. Mr. Wambo, a Diplomat of the First Water, said that no matter what she did to the Hirsute Crop she would always look like a Million Dollars to him and if she wanted to make the Supreme Venture to go ahead and he hoped that her Conscience would be her Guide.

No Ether Used.

Weeks before the big Event every one but Mrs. Wambo knew that she was slipping. She kept on protesting that the Whole Thing was silly but the Fact that she couldn't talk about anything else proved that she was a Marked Woman.

Finally she hung the whole Responsibility on to Wambo. She said that if he insisted on it, she would go ahead and have it done.

Then came the tense Weeks during which she was trying to decide whether to have a Boyish Bob or a Shingle or a Terrace Effect or the Fish-Hook Dingle-Dangles or some Scallops.

On the Day when she went to the Union Central Building the Sun stood still and Traffic was suspended. She refused to take any Anesthetics and went through the Ordeal absolutely alone except for Lib and Gert Ella and Jess. After it was over she didn't know whether to go and sit in Peacock Alley or hurry Home and hide in a closet.

Just after she took the Fatal Step a Convention of Hair-Dressers in Atlantic City decreed against the Bob, but it was a False Alarm. Mrs. Wambo is now High Priestess of the Cult and will tell you what a Relief it is not to be compelled to hang your head out of the Bath-Room Window for Hours at a time.

New Movements Doubtful

History teaches us, among other things, that every great intellectual effort has, of necessity, been brought to birth with pain and suffering; that few people have been able to gauge the intrinsic and ultimate value of a new movement at any period of the world's history.

Pioneers in Movement for Total Abstinence

The year 1932 marked the centenary of the seven men of Preston (Lancashire). These men were pioneers of the modern total-abstinence movement. Joseph Livesey drafted the first total-abstinence pledge in England in September, 1832, and its terms, and those who signed their names to it, are as follows: "We agree to abstain from all liquors of an intoxicating quality, whether ale, porter, wine, or ardent spirits, except as medicines: John Gratrix, Edward Dickinson, John Broadbelt, John Smith, Joseph Livesey, David Anderton, John King." These are the historic Seven Men of Preston. To Preston also belongs the origin of the word "teetotal." At one of Livesey's meetings an intemperate, illiterate man, Dick Turner, wandered in, and before the meeting ended had signed the new pledge. He became an evangelist and a popular advocate of the cause. Speaking at a meeting in the celebrated Preston "cockpit," he coined a new word to suit his purpose, saying "I'll be reet down and out t-t-total for ever." The phrase immediately caught on, and the name for the new movement was born.

Gives Up Own People

In arranging the marriage of a daughter a profitable exchange is the prime consideration, because the subsequent separation after her departure is so complete. Thereafter the young girl owes to her parents-in-law the obedience and respect she formerly gave her own parents. She no longer pays worship to the ancestors of her family, but severs her relations with the dead as with the living. Henceforth she can worship only at the shrine of her husband's family.—Fu-Jen, Peiping.

Children's Clinic Ends Here Friday

The children's health clinic being conducted at the Knights of Columbus building on Broadway ends on Friday afternoon. This clinic is in charge of a staff of physicians and nurses from the state health department, and is being held here under the auspices of the city health board. It was planned to have 150 well children examined during the five days of the clinic at the rate of 30 children a day.

British Gunboats Seeking Kidnapers

By JAMES A. MILLS

Newchwang, Manchuria, March 30 (AP).—British gunboats were searching off the Manchurian coast today for a daring gang of Chinese Buccaneers who kidnaped four British officers yesterday from the British merchant ship Nanchang.

Fourteen pirates attacked the British ship, wounded two Chinese members of the crew, and carried off the four officers in two junks. The two Chinese vessels escaped in shallow water along the coast of the Gulf of Liaotung as the Nanchang tried to pursue them.

The pirates boarded the Nanchang as it was waiting for high tide at the Newchwang bar. They fired rifles and pistols with abandon as they cowed Chinese sailors and ordered them to lead the way to the officers' cabin.

In the cabin they seized W. [illegible] Hargraves, A. D. Blue, F. L. [illegible] and Charles Johnson. They tied them up and threw them over the sides into the waiting junks and then ransacked all the cabins. Before Captain Robinson of the Nanchang was able to start in pursuit, the junks were well away.

MILTON

Mrs. Blakeney's Mandolin Club of Highland entertained the members of the Milton Grange at its recent meeting. A number of members attended, also several guests. Another feature of the evening's program was an accordion solo by James Clarke, son of Walter Clarke. An announcement was made that the service and hospitality committee of the Grange has planned a covered dish social to be held in Grange Hall Friday evening, March 31.

A benefit card party will be held at the home of Mrs. Birdsall Taber Saturday afternoon, April 1, under the auspices of the Maids and Matrons' Society.

D. B. Roseberry, of the Seamen's Institute, was a speaker at the Lenten service in All Saints' Church last Friday afternoon. The Rev. VandeBeek Vos conducted the service.

Edward Theill, Jr., who has been spending the winter in Florida, has returned home.

The Milton Maids and Matrons held its regular monthly meeeting in the S. H. Hallock Library building Thursday afternoon with a large attendance. Mrs. Comstock of Cornell was a guest speaker of the afternoon and addressed the group on "Becoming Colors." She demonstrated her talk by draping various colors on members who assisted her. She pointed out which colors were becoming to each person and why. She advised in choosing gowns to pick out colors which would emphasize hair, eyes and coloring. During the business meeting it was voted to purchase pencils, paper and combs for the children of District No. 2 school.
